The dead are Bernard Zegowitz, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Zegowitz, of 913 Fifth street northwest, and Mrs. Ida Williams, of 1712 Sixteenth street northwest.

The injured:

Mrs. Margaret Zegowitz, 40 years old, mother of the dead youth, who received a fracture of the skull.

Frances Zegowitz, 8 years old, cuts and bruises.

Rose Zegowitz, 6 years old, fracture of the skull.

The collision demolished the machine, which was operated by Mrs. Stephnic, daughter of the woman killed. Passing motorists with difficulty extricated the bodies and the injured persons from the wrecked car and rushed them to the Perth Amboy Hospital, where the condition of Mrs. Zegowitz, her daughter, Rose Zegowitz, and Mrs. Stephnic was reported as serious.

Members of the two families left Washington Saturday on a motor trip to New Jersey, where they planned to spend a week. The truck which collided with their car was driven by Samuel Denox, of Philadelphia.

The Zegowitz youth was a student during the last scholastic year at the Immaculate Conception School.

Senate Requested To Act on Pensions

Legion Official Advocates Quick Passage of World War Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Passage of the World War veterans pension bill at this session of Congress was urged yesterday by John Thomas Taylor, vice president of the national legislative committee of the American Legion, in a letter to all members of the Senate.

Mr. Taylor said the measure, as passed by the House, would cost $181,000,000 a year, but that the Senate finance committee had reduced this figure to $74,000,000 and had included an amendment which would save an additional $25,000,000. In its present form, he said, the bill would cost only $49,000,000. The bill is on the preferred list on the Senate calendar.

"The measure," he said, "will compensate about 100,000 of the most distressing and deserving cases, save an untold number of lives and brighten tens of thousands of homes now darkened through suffering and financial distress—homes in which widows and children have been pondering the gratitude of governments."

PACT FOES IN NAVY DEFENDED BY ODDIE

Senator Brands Attacks on Personnel as Unjust and Dispiriting.

BLOW TO MORALE SEEN

By ALBERT W. FOX.

A new feature in the naval treaty controversy developed yesterday when Senator Tasker L. Oddie, second ranking Republican member of the naval affairs committee, issued a statement defending officers of the United States Navy against attempts "to belittle and break their spirit," because of their opposition to the pact.

Mr. Oddie points out that these officers are not permitted to answer attacks in the public press. No reference is made to any specific criticism of the Navy, nor to the radio speech of Mr. Stimson last Thursday, wherein the Secretary referred to the narrow view of fighting men whom he described as "blindfolded" to the problems of peace.

The feud between the Navy Department and the State Department has become gradually more pronounced since the London treaty was submitted to the Senate committee on foreign relations. The American delegation at first took the position that the Navy was practically unanimous in support of the provisions in the pact. When naval authorities testified before the committee against these provisions and it developed that the service was almost a unit in its opposition, the criticism against the Navy began and has since continued.

In his statement issued yesterday Senator Oddie said:

"Because of the recent unjust attacks on the personnel, qualifications and ability of the officers of our Navy, I feel that the public interest demands some information and comment thereon.

"The Senate naval affairs committee, of which I am a member, entrusted by the Senate with our national defense legislation, in the prosecution of its duty called many of the high commanding officers of the Navy before it and questioned them specifically regarding the various phases of our national defense and the effect the proposed London Treaty in its present form might have on it.

"As the hearings will show, they answered all questions ably and frankly and the opinion of the overwhelming majority of these officers was that our country, under the terms of the proposed London Treaty, would materially weaken its national defense by forfeiting its inherent right to maintain independently its own naval policy.

"Under the provisions of the proposed treaty the United States would be compelled to build certain types of ships not well adapted to our national defense while it would be prohibited from building enough of other types which it needs. These limitations destroy the naval parities which we should have.

"It should be remembered that in the Washington Treaty of 1922 our country surrendered its right to fortify certain of its naval bases in the Western Pacific in order to establish the original parity. Under

HOOVER DENIES AID TO MORROW IN NEW JERSEY

Baird Statement Brings Quick Contradiction by White House.

PRESIDENT TO TAKE NO PART IN PRIMARY

Repudiation Might React Against Ambassador on Tuesday.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S WORDS ARE CAREFUL

Importance Is Attached to Senator's Reasons for Tactics.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The White House yesterday repudiated a statement by Senator David Baird that President Hoover wanted Dwight W. Morrow to win the Republican senatorial primary in New Jersey tomorrow.

Senator Baird's statement made in a speech Saturday night had the effect of a bombshell.

"We hear much in this campaign of the friendship of President Hoover for Franklin W. Fort, Mr. Morrow's opponent," Senator Baird was quoted as having said. "But I am able to assure you that President Hoover himself is intensely interested in seeing New Jersey send Dwight Morrow to the Senate."

White House Reaction Quick.

The White House was quick to react and late yesterday issued this statement:

"Protests have been received from supporters of Congressman Fort and former Senator Frelinghuysen in respect to Senator Baird's reported statement. Several weeks ago a statement was made from the White House that the President has taken no part as between Republican candidates in New Jersey or in the primaries of any other State.

"That still holds good. This is also in accord with the expressed wish of each of the candidates."

The question is, What effect these last-minute developments will have on tomorrow's outcome? The repudiation might react against Mr. Morrow, but, on the other hand, it might be said that all the wind has not yet been taken from Senator Baird's claim.

Statement Carefully Worded.

The White House statement is very carefully worded, and the fact that it brings in former Senator Frelinghuysen's name seems to rather emphasize the President's impartiality. Neither does the statement seem to reflect any resentment on the part of the President that Senator Baird should have used his name.

The statement is so worded, in fact, that there is no reason why the Morrow workers can not carry on with their claim, and explain away the White House utterance as simply a "necessary state paper."

More importance would seem to attach to Senator Baird's reason for making his statement. Political observers agreed that it was a reckless move. He was playing with a boomerang. Had the White House repudiation been worded differently, for example, there is no question that considerable harm could have been done to Mr. Morrow's cause.

Question Is Raised.

The question is whether Senator Baird considered the situation desperate enough to make what appeared to be a very desperate move.

The President's known friendship for Representative Fort has been one of Mr. Morrow's greatest stumbling blocks. This and the fact that he is running as a wet make up the only opposition against him.

Mr. Fort himself has not sought to

MAKES REPORT

S. PARKER GILBERT.

GERMANY IS WARNED TO REFORM BUDGET

Gilbert, Making Last Report, Cites Steady Progress in Nation's Economy.

DAWES PLAN IS LAUDED

Berlin, June 15 (A.P.).—Warning that Germany can meet her obligations under the Young plan, and develop industrially, only by immediate and radical budget reform, was sounded today by S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan, in his final report today.

Mr. Gilbert's report pointed with satisfaction to the accomplishments under the outgoing Dawes plan, and expressed conviction that Germany is able to meet the Young plan, and obligations. The agent general, whose task ends with the start of Young plan operations, also said Germany was capable of a great industrial future. The document summarized the course of reparations during the five years of Mr. Gilbert's stewardship.

"When the experts of the Dawes committee were called together at the begining of 1924, Germany was on the point of collapse after an unprecedented period of inflation," said the report.

"Reparations were not being paid and prospects for future payments were uncertain. With stabilization of currency and adoption of the Dawes plan, there came the turning point in German reconstruction, and in the succeeding years German economy has made remarkable progress.

"Germany's credit has been reestablished both at home and abroad, her industries have been reorganized, and her productive capacity has been restored, and the general standard of living has greatly improved.

"The Dawes plan, as was its object, also cleared the way for complete and final settlement of the reparations problem, which is embodied in the Young plan and The Hague agreements of January 20, 1930. The new plan is an act of confidence in the good faith and financial integrity of Germany, and Germany now has a definite task to perform on her own responsibility, without foreign supervision and without the transfer protection provided by the Dawes plan."

The urgency of the problem of financial reform was stressed again and again in Gilbert's report. Pointing out that the public revenues, which have developed during the period of the Dawes plan "to an ex-

STILLS, MASH SEIZED IN U.S. RUM CRUSADE

Federal Men Take Two 300-Gallon Outfits Near Leonardtown.

SHOTS FIRED AT MAN WHO FLEES IN WOODS

Raids on Deserted Farms in Wake of Arrests Made Saturday.

23 PRISONERS TO GET HEARINGS THIS WEEK

They Will Be Brought Before Commissioner Turnage, Not Police Courts.

The war on the liquor trade broke out on another front yesterday when Federal men descended on two stills in the vicinity of Leonardtown. At one place they seized 5,000 gallons of mash and a 300-gallon still. Several shots were fired at a man who fled as the agents approached, but he was not caught.

Another raid netted a 300-gallon still and 110 gallons of whisky. No one was arrested in this case either. Both stills were found in the woods on deserted farms.

During the Saturday night and early yesterday drive, Federal agents from Baltimore raided at least four places in nearby Maryland, and five persons were arrested. Exact details of the raids could not be obtained, due to absence from home of the agents, but Maryland county police gave the names of four places visited by the Federal men.

One Man Leads to Raids.

Wilson's Hotel, in Marlboro, was one of the spots receiving attention of the squads, and the Lone Star Inn, at Camp Springs, Md., was another. Green Gables, at Suitland, was visited, as was the old Club Marlboro, now the Forestville Club, at Forestville, Md.

Those arrested and charged with illegal sale and possession in Baltimore are Florence Wilson, colored, 23 years old, of Marlboro, who is out on $1,000 bond; Isadore Shapiro, 31 years old, of Pennsylvania avenue near Thirteenth street southeast, bond of $1,000; Vincent Casinsarro, 30 years old, and his wife, Barbara, 33 years old, both of Hyattsville, $1,500 bond each; Robert P. Henderson, 35 years old, of Clinton, Md., bond of $1,000. They all had a preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Joseph J. O'Donnell at Southern Police Station in Baltimore before they were released.

The same man is said to have made the buys that led to all the raids in nearby Maryland. Maryland county officers said that he was a man of winning ways, using tricks with cards and matches to ingratiate himself. And so successful was he that one woman, with whom he formed an acquaintance, took him to other places, introducing him. It is said that she took him as far as North Beach to have him meet a man.

In a raid on the Dew Drop Inn, at Oxon Hill, made by Prince Georges County officers, thirteen men and women, all colored, were arrested and

PRESIDENT DECLARES INTENTION OF SIGNING NEW TARIFF MEASURE

Text of Hoover Message On Decision to Sign Tariff

Associated Press.)

The text of President Hoover's statement announcing he would sign the tariff bill follows:

"I shall approve the tariff bill. This legislation has now been under a most continuous consideration by Congress for nearly fifteen months. It was undertaken as the result of pledges given by the Republican party at Kansas City. Its declarations embraced these obligations:

"The Republican party believes that the home market built up under the protective policy belongs to the American farmer, and it pledges its support of legislation, which will give this market to him to the full extent of his ability to supply it. * * *

"There are certain industries which can not now successfully compete with foreign producers because of lower foreign wages and a lower cost of living abroad, and we pledge the next Republican Congress to an examination and where necessary a revision of these schedules to the end that the American labor in these industries may again command the home market, may maintain its standard of living, and may count upon steady employment in its accustomed field."

Platform promises must not be empty gestures. In my message of April 16, 1929, to the special session of the Congress I accordingly recommended an increase in agricultural protection; a limited revision of other schedules to take care of the economic changes necessitating increases or decreases since the enactment of the 1922 law, and I further recommend a reorganization both of the tariff commission and of the method of executing the flexible provisions.

A statistical estimate of the bill by the Tariff Commission shows that the average duties collected under the Act to End Uncertainty in Business World, Hoover Believes.

FAILURE WOULD MEAN RETARDING RECOVERY

Statement Declares Bill Fulfills Promises of Platform.

AGREES STRUCTURE NOT LETTER PERFECT

Flexible Clause Will Halt Continued Lobbying, He Asserts.

President Hoover will sign the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, he announced in a formal statement issued at the White House yesterday.

Foregoing his Sabbath rest, the President spent a good part of the day toiling on the statement, a document of 1,000 words or more. Copies of it were given to newspapermen shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Completion of the tariff bill, the President said, will end the present uncertainty in the business world, an uncertainty aggravated by the long orgy of talk on the measure in Congress.

Held Fulfillment of Promises.

Failure of the bill to become a law, he said, would only bring continued agitation for protection to agriculture and labor, and nothing would retard business recovery more than this.

The President announced his intention of approving the bill in the very first sentence of his statement. He then cited the history of the measure, beginning with the Kansas City convention, when the Republican party pledged itself to give protection to American agriculture and to those American industries that were unable to compete with foreign producers enjoying the advantage of cheap labor.

"Platform promises," the President said, "must not be empty gestures."

To Adjust Inequalities.

In words that the man in the street might understand, the President sought to show that the new bill is far from being the robber tariff its opponents say it is. He granted that it was not perfect but pointed out that no tariff bill has ever been perfect. With the aid of the new flexible provision, he said, the inequalities can be scientifically adjusted.

Moreover, he said, the flexible provision should free the country of further tariff revision for "many years to come." Thus, he said, the country would be freed of the lobbies, the log rolling and the other incidents to tariff revision that are so disturbing to public confidence.

In this way the President made it clear that he is going to make extensive use of the flexible provision—a provision whereby he, on the recommendation of a reorganized Tariff Commission, may increase or decrease duties by 50 per cent.

May Ask More Power.

And if this flexible provision is found to be insufficient for effective action, the President said, he is going to ask that the Tariff Commission be given even further authority.

Concerning the complaints from foreign countries that the duties in the new bill are unduly high, the President said that the flexible provision could also be invoked to adjust these in cases where there was room for complaint.

Concluding his statement, the President said:

"It is urgent that the uncertainties in the business world which have been added to by the long-extended debate on the measure should be ended. They can be ended only by completion of this bill.

"Meritorious demands for further protection to agriculture and labor

CANNON THREATENS TO FILE LIBEL SUITS

Bishop Flays Periodicals; Urges Senate to Pass Law Group Plans.

QUICK ACTION IS ASKED

(Associated Press.)

Scarcely out of the hands of the Senate lobby committee, whose efforts to question him on his anti-Smith activities of 1928 he successfully defied, Bishop James Cannon, jr., has petitioned the Senate to pass before adjournment the law enforcement commission measures already approved by the House.

At the same time it was disclosed in a statement distributed from his office that the bishop had engaged counsel to consider the possibility of criminal or civil libel action against "wet and Roman Catholic publications" which carried "cartoons, editorials and ... eged news articles" concerning him during the last two years.

"The bishop further announced," said the statement, "that it would be his purpose to meet all future publications, as well as those which have already been made, as far as counsel may consider them proper grounds for action, with the processes of the law. Vicious, cowardly attacks made in the Senate and the House of Representatives are immune from such prosecution."

The petition for passage of the law enforcement bills was signed by Bishop Canron as president of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. It noted that unless the bills were reported promptly by the Senate judiciary committee "there is a possibility that the Senate may adjourn without acting upon these proposed law enforcement measures."

The bills in question would permit juryless trials of minor violators before United States commissioners. The judiciary committee is the parent body which was assigned the lobby investigation. Its chairman, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, appointed the lobby committee with which Bishop Cannon has been in conflict.

30,000-FOOT RECORD IN SEAPLANE, CLAIM

BAROGRAPH SENT HERE

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—A world record was claimed today by Boris Sergievsky, who flew a seaplane with a load of 500 kilograms (approximately 1,100 pounds) to an estimated altitude of 30,000 feet at North Beach, Long Island.

The old altitude record for seaplanes carrying that load was set by Fritz Harder, of Germany, at 27,749 feet on November 2, 1928.

Sergievsky, chief pilot for an airplane manufacturing concern, was up about an hour and a half. He said the temperature at his greatest height was about 25 degrees below zero. On the beach it was close to 90 above.

A sealed barograph installed in the plane has been sent to Washington for official calibration.

Two months ago Sergievsky established new world altitude records for seaplanes carrying 1,000 and 2,000 kilograms. He also set a seaplane speed record with a load of 2,000 kilograms over a course of 100 kilometers. These records were all previously held by foreign pilots.

"Ideal Girl" Plans Missionary Career

Winner of Sesquicentennial Title Takes Up Work in Philadelphia.

East Rochester, N. H., June 15 (A.P.).—The "ideal American girl" intends to enter the missionary field in India because "it affords the greatest opportunity for service to those who wish to help others."

Alice M. Thompson, 22, daughter of the Rev. Roger E. Thompson, pastor of Bethany Methodist Episcopal Church here, was given the title at the sesquicentennial celebration at Philadelphia. Spurning offers to commercialize her fame, she completed her education at Ohio Wesleyan University, from which she was graduated last week.

Today she took up her new duties as secretary and director of religious education in the Oaklane M. E. Church, Philadelphia. Her goal, she said, was the missionary field, particularly India. During the past year she served as student pastor at the Asbury M. E. Church in Delaware, Ohio.

Seven Men Believed Drowned in Lake Erie

Searchers Hunt Toledo Party Which Started to Picnic in Speedboat and Failed to Arrive; Craft Found Drifting.

Toledo, Ohio, June 15 (A.P.).—Searching parties were organized here tonight to visit Lake Erie islands to hunt for seven Toledo men who may have drowned yesterday while racing in a speedboat to Pelee Island to attend the annual Elks picnic.

The speedboat was found this morning, drifting near West Sister Island. In it were three life preservers and a hat. No trace of any bodies was found.

The men missing are: Charles H. Nauts, internal revenue collector for the Toledo district; Franklin B. Jones, former member of the Lucas County board of election; Herbert Nauts, an attorney and brother of Charles H. Nauts; Arthur Kruse, president of the Kruse-Burman Mortuary Co.; Frank Miller, former city water commissioner; Henry Heinbuah, assistant county engineer, and John Myers, who was piloting the speedboat.

Early tomorrow morning numerous speedboats will be searching the vicinity where the boat was found. Planes also will fly low over the water to search for bodies.

The men were last seen Saturday morning as their speedboat circled about the steamer Greyhound when it steamed out of Toledo with 600 Elks aboard. They challenged the larger boat to a race.

The seven did not arrive at the island.

Word of the discovery of the abandoned boat did not reach Toledo until late today.

Woman Leaves Note, Then Tries to End Life

Leaving a note in which she declared she was despondent, Mrs. Dorothy McGee, 52 years old, of 308 H street northwest, attempted suicide yesterday in her home, according to police, by inhaling illuminating gas.

The woman was found unconscious in a chair in the kitchen of her home. Three gas jets on a stove were wide open, police say. The rescue squad worked over the woman for twenty minutes and then removed her to Gallinger Hospital where her condition was said to be undetermined.

President-Elect of Brazil Says Farewell to Hoover

Dr. Prestes Takes Another View of the Capital Before Departing for New York, Whence He Will Make Trip to West Point.

After four days passed at the Capital as the Nation's guest, Dr. Julio Prestes, president-elect of Brazil, yesterday departed at noon on a special train for New York. Secretary of State Stimson and officials of the White House, Army and Navy saw him off at Union Station.

President Hoover, accompanied by his youngest son, Allan, and George Akerson, the President's secretary, paid the official call of farewell on Dr. Prestes at 10:30 o'clock, motoring to the home of Eugene Meyer, of New York and Washington, which had been placed at the president-elect's disposal during his stay.

While President Hoover chatted with Dr. Prestes, Allan Hoover talked with Fernando Prestes, 20-year-old son of Brazil's next president. Dr. Prestes again thanked Mr. Hoover, and through him the American people, for "the marvelously splendid welcome I have received." President Hoover replied that he hoped Dr. Prestes would find time to make another visit to the United States in the near future.

So "entranced," as he put it, was Dr. Prestes with Washington that he suggested to Secretary Akerson that they make a short sightseeing tour

Grandparents and Girl Die As Plane Crashes Into Car

Widow, 22, Critically Hurt and Two Fliers Slightly Injured in Hammond, Ind., Wreck; Aviators Are Placed in Jail.

Hammond, Ind., June 15 (A.P.).—A man and his wife and their granddaughter were killed today when an Army observation plane trying to take off crashed into their sedan in Robertsdale, Ind., a suburb. Their daughter was perhaps fatally injured.

The dead:

Peter Brockman, 50, of Chicago.

Mrs. Catherine Brockman, 45, his wife; Virginia Sterling, 3, their granddaughter.

The injured:

Mrs. Ernestine Sterling, 22, a widow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brockman; Lieut. Wilson V. Newhall, 28, the pilot; Sergt. James Van Meter, 35, observer.

Newhall and Van Meter were not seriously injured and are both held in jail here. Police said they planned to confer with the Lake County coroner relative to placing manslaughter charges against them after an investigation has been held.

The crash occurred as a crowd of persons, mostly in automobiles, began to leave the Robey Race Track in Robertsdale, after the races had been called off on account of rain. The Brockmans, according to Thomas Owen, of Whiting, Ind., a witness, were watching the pilot's efforts to take off.

which have developed since the tariff of 1922 would not end if this bill fails of enactment. Agitation for legislative tariff revision would necessarily continue before the country. Nothing would contribute to retard business recovery more than this continued agitation.

"As I have said, I do not assume the tariff rate structure in this or any other tariff bill is perfect, but I am convinced that the disposal of the whole question is urgent.

"I believe that the flexible provisions can within reasonable time remedy inequalities; that this provision is a progressive advance and gives great hope of taking the tariff away from politics, lobbying and log-rolling; that the bill gives protection to agriculture for the market of its products and to several industries in need of such protection for the wage of their labor; that with returning normal conditions our foreign trade will continue to expand."

Bill Awaits Curtis Signature.

While it has been generally understood at the Capitol that the President approved the bill, the statement yesterday contained the first definite announcement that he would sign it.

As a matter of fact, the bill, although it has passed both the Senate and House, has not yet reached the White House. First, Vice President Curtis must sign it. Speaker Longworth signed it immediately after the House vote on Saturday, but inasmuch as the Senate was not in session that day, the signing of the bill by the Vice President had to wait.

The Vice President is expected to affix his signature today, and the measure then will be ready for its journey to the White House.

Radio Monopoly Charged by Firm

Grigsby-Grunow Is Out of Association, Says Official, Scoring R. C. A.

Chicago, June 15 (A.P.).—Charging that the Radio Corporation of America and certain associated companies are "engaged in establishing a monopoly of every phase of the ratdio art," B. J. Grigsby, chairman of the board of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., today announced that his company has resigned as a member of the Radio Manufacturers Association.

The announcement was made in a formal statement in which Mr. Grigsby also charged that the Radio Corporation of America and "associated companies" are preventing an active stand of the association on issues vital to the radio industry.

Declaring that the United States Attorney General has filed a petition asking for a dissolution of the radio trust, Mr. Grigsby said that the Radio Manufacturers Association takes the position that it can not do anything which would interfere with the members which he charges are establishing a monopoly.

German Fascists March Shirtless

Solve Heat Problem and Find Way to Evade Ban on Uniforms.

Berlin, June 15 (A.P.).—A number of German Fascists solved the cool clothing problem in the midst of a heat wave today.

After being ordered by police to remove their uniform brown shirts following a governmental edict, the Fascists walked the streets shirtless—in other words, nude from the waist up. They were not molested.

Later, 150 Fascists demonstrated against the police ban on uniforms and were arrested. But all except 18, who refused to remove their brown shirts, were released. Eleven others were arrested when they arrived at the Berlin railway wearing brown shirts.

The usual Sunday run of free-for-all fights between Fascists and Communists was reported. A Communist named Zerbat was killed in a clash at Etythria, near Leipsic, and four Fascists were badly beaten. Eight persons were injured in another brawl at Mannheim.

APPROVAL OF TARIFF LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN

Coalition Prepares Drive for Votes, Particularly in Pacific Northwest.

BORAH TO TAKE STUMP

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's announced approval of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill yesterday signaled the opening of a political campaign which finds the Democrats and Western Republican independents arrayed against the administration.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, asserted in a formal statement that the tariff "is thus made the issue of the coming congressional campaign."

The Western Republican independents who have demanded the export debenture as a part of increased tariff revision, were preparing last night to send their champion, Senator Borah, of Idaho, to the campaign stumps he occupied two years ago in behalf of the Hoover ticket. President Hoover, in his statement, accepted the issue with the declaration that the legislation was pledged by the Republican platform of 1928 and "platform promises must not be empty gestures."

12 G. O. P. Senators Voted No.

Twelve Republican senators from the Northwest and 27 Republican members of the House from the same territory opposed the bill on final passage.

This vast agricultural region of the Northwest which will be crossed this summer by President Hoover and Senator Borah, seems destined to be the battleground for the tariff contest. Whether the Republican row on the tariff will reach from this year's congressional elections to the 1932 presidential campaign is problematical.

Republican tariff warriors, including such veterans as Vice President Curtis and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the party leader, are considering campaign tours to meet the challenge on this age-old issue.

Campaign Foundation Laid.

The groundwork for the tariff campaign was laid by the party leaders in the closing days of the Senate debate. Senator Borah then asserted that the flexible provision had failed to work in the last eight years and could not be counted upon to function now, and that the higher tariffs without debenture failed to meet the campaign pledge to restore equality to agriculture.

Senator Watson said the arguments against the tariff were the same now as in past history, but that the Nation had prospered and would prosper under high protection. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, contended the Hawley-Smoot bill was a "disappointment" even to its friends.

Mr. Shouse, in his statement yesterday, referred, in this respect, to the speech of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, in which he announced his support for the bill.

Text of Statement.

The statement in part follows:

"The last act of the long tragedy of the infliction of the Grundy tariff on the people of the United States was as oblique and scaly as the earlier scenes in the progress of this dishonest raid on the consuming public.

"The two senators from Pennsylvania furnished the comic relief in the drab play when they told the Senate how reluctant they were to vote for the bill—Reed, on the theory that he thought a bad bill better for the country than no bill at all, and Grundy because, though he did not think the industrial rates were high enough and the agricultural rates too light, he did not want to be blamed by such of his manufacturing friends as might think otherwise.

"For days the Republican press agents have been dwelling on the uncertainty of these two votes. There was an uncertainty to this extent—the administration realized that the country regarded the bill as exorbitant and extortionate and enacted entirely in the interests of the high contributors to the Republican campaign fund. Somebody conceived the idea that it would be a great achievement of psychology to have these two senators from the State most favored seem to be dissatisfied with what had been done for Pennsylvania.

Votes Found Important.

"The administration further realized that the label of the Grundy bill was a deadly thing in all parts of the country. It was a brilliant thought that to have Grundy himself vote against the bill might wash off this label. For a time the leaders believed they could spare these two votes, and had they been able to do so it seems quite probable that the strategy would have been carried out.

"In view of this history, can anybody suppose that Senator Reed, standpat high protectionist and Mellon-guided senator, could ever for a moment honestly have ben in doubt as to how he would vote?

"With Grundy's success in making the rates just what he wanted them to be, with his piloting all the trading of tariff favors for votes, with his thumbprints all over the bill, could anything be more absurd than to try to make his vote in its favor appear reluctant?

Alternative Presented, Claim.

"During all the long struggle the Democrats were not content merely to oppose the Republican tariff. They presented a consistent and complete program of their own and, as a substitute for the administrative feature that puts into the President's hands a weapon that might be used with deadly effect politically, and which has been used in nearly every instance to increase tariff rates at the beheat of powerful corporations and individuals, they offered an opportunity for a scientific method of arriving at just duties, untainted by partisan interests and uninfluenced by political considerations.

"And the Republican majority in Congress disregarded this opportunity as completely as it disregarded President Hoover's stipulation for a closely limited revision of the tariff bill.

"The Grundy bill is thus made the issue of the coming congressional campaign. The people will render their verdict next November and the Democratic party feels no concern over the result."

Fascist Chief, Exiled, Leaves Austria by Air

Vienna, June 15 (A.P.).—Maj. Waldemar Pabst, leader of the Austrian Fascist Heimwehr, today appealed against the government order which expelled him as an undesirable, but his plea was rejected. He was released from police custody, however, and departed in an airplane with his destination announced as Venice.

The order banishing Pabst for his Fascist activities caused a sensation throughout Austria today. Police took strict measures to prevent demonstrations. Pabst was a leader in the Kapputsch of 1920, which overthrew the Ebert government in Germany.

Text of Hoover Message On Intent to Sign Tariff

1922 law were about 13.8 per cent of the value of all imports, both free and dutiable, while if the new law had been applied it would have increased this percentage to about 16 per cent. This compares with the average level of the tariff under the McKinley law of 23 per cent, the Wilson law of 20.9 per cent, the Dingley law of 25.8 per cent, the Payne-Aldrich law of 19.3 per cent, the Fordney-McCumber law of 13.83 per cent.

Under the Underwood law of 1913 the amounts were disturbed by war conditions varying 6 per cent to 14.8 per cent.

The proportion of imports which will be free of duty under the new law is estimated at from 61 to 63 per cent. This compares with averages under the McKinley law of 52.4 per cent, the Wilson law of 49.4 per cent, the Dingley law of 45.2 per cent, the Payne-Aldrich law of 52.5 per cent, the Fordney-McCumber law of 63.8 per cent.

Under the Underwood law of 1913 disturbed conditions varied the free list from 60 per cent to 73 per cent, averaging 66.3 per cent.

Directed to Farmers' Interest.

The increases in tariff are largely directed to the interest of the farmer. Of the increases, it is stated by the Tariff Commission that 93.73 per cent are upon products of agricultural origin measured in value, as distinguished from 6.25 per cent upon commodities of strictly nonagricultural origin. The average rate upon agricultural raw materials shows an increase from 38.10 per cent to 48.92 per cent in contrast to dutiable articles of strictly other than agricultural origin, which show an average increase of from 31.02 per cent to 34.31 per cent. Compensatory duties have necessarily been given on products manufactured from agricultural raw materials and protective rates added to these in some instances.

The extent of rate revision as indicated by the Tariff Commission is that in value of the total imports the duties upon approximately 22.5 per cent have been increased, and 77.5 per cent were untouched or decreased. By number of the dutiable items mentioned in the bill, out of the total of about 3,300 there were about 890 increased, 235 decreased, and 2,170 untouched. The number of items increased was, therefore, 27 per cent of all dutiable items, and compares with 83 per cent of the number of items which were increased in the 1922 revision.

This tariff law is like all other tariff legislation, whether framed primarily upon a protective or a revenue basis. It contains many compromises between sectional interests and between different industries. No tariff bill has ever been enacted or ever will be enacted under the present system that will be perfect. A large portion of the items are always adjusted with good judgment, but it is bound to contain some inequalities and inequitable compromises. There are items upon which duties will prove too high, and others upon which duties will prove to be too low.

Responsibility on Congress.

Certainly no President, with his other duties, can pretend to make that exhaustive determination of the complex facts which surround each of these 3,300 items, and which has required the attention of hundreds of men in Congress for nearly a year and a third. That responsibility must rest upon the Congress in a legislative rate revision.

On the administrative side I have insisted, however, that there should be created a new basis for the flexible tariff, and it has been incorporated in this law. Thereby the means are established for objective and judicial review of those rates upon principles laid down by the Congress, free from pressures inherent in legislative action. Thus, the outstanding step of this tariff legislation has been the reorganization of the largely inoperative flexible provision of 1922 into a form which should render it possible to secure prompt and scientific adjustment of serious inequities and inequalities which may prove to have been incorporated in the bill.

This new provision has even a larger importance. If a perfect tariff bill were enacted today, the increased rapidity of economic change and the constant shifting of our relations to industries abroad will create a continuous stream of items which would work hardship upon some segment of the American people except for the provision of this relief. Without a workable flexible provision, we would require even more frequent congressional tariff revision than during the past. With it the country should be freed from further general revision for many years to come. Congressional revisions are not only disturbing to business, but with all their necessary collateral surroundings in lobbies, log rolling and the activities of group interests, are disturbing to public confidence.

Formerly President's Task.

Under the old flexible provisions, the task of adjustment was imposed directly upon the President, and the limitations in the law which circumscribed it were such that action was long delayed and it was largely inoperative, although important benefits were brought to the dairying, flax, glass and other industries through it.

The new flexible provision established the responsibility for revisions upon a reorganized tariff commission, composed of members equally of both parties as a definite rate-making body acting through semijudicial methods of open hearings and investigation by which items can be taken up one by one upon direction or upon application of aggrieved parties. Recommendations are to be made to the President, he being given authority to promulgate or veto the conclusions of the commission. Such revision can be accomplished without disturbance to business, as they concern but one item at a time, and the principles laid down assure a protective basis.

The principle of a protective tariff for the benefit of labor, industry, and the farmer is established in the bill by the requirement that the commission shall adjust the rates so as to cover the differences in cost of production at home and abroad—and it is authorized to increase or decrease the duties by 50 per cent to effect this end. The means and methods of ascertaining such differences by the commission are provided in such fashion as should expedite prompt and effective action if grievances develop.

When the flexible principle was first written into law in 1922, by tradition and force of habit the old conception of legislative revision was so firmly fixed that the innovation was bound to be used with caution and in a restricted field, even had it not been largely inoperative for other reasons, now, however, and particularly after the record of the last fifteen months, there is a growing and widespread realization that in this highly complicated and intricately organized and rapidly shifting modern economic world, the time has come when a more scientific and businesslike method of tariff revision must be devised. Toward this the new flexible provision takes a long step.

Meets Demands of Leaders.

These provisions meet the repeated demands of statesmen and industrial and agricultural leaders over the past 25 years. It complies in full degree with the proposals made 20 years ago by President Roosevelt. It now covers proposals which I urged in 1922.

If, however, by any chance the flexible provisions now made should prove insufficient for effective action, I shall ask for further authority for the commission, for I believe that public opinion will give wholehearted support to the carrying out of such a program on a generous scale, to the end that we may develop a protective system free from the vices which have characterized every tariff revision in the past.

The complaints from some foreign countries that these duties have been placed unduly high can be remedied, if justified, by proper application to the Tariff Commission.

It is urgent that the uncertainties in the business world, which have been added to by the long-extended debate of the measure, should be ended. They can be ended only by completion of this bill. Meritorious demands for further protection to agriculture and labor which have developed since the tariff of 1922 would not end if this bill fails of enactment. Agitation for legislative tariff revision would necessarily continue before the country. Nothing would contribute to retard business recovery more than this continued agitation.

As I have said, I do not assume the rate structure in this or any other tariff bill is perfect, but I am convinced that the disposal of the whole question is urgent. I believe that the flexible provisions can within reasonable time remedy inequalities; that this provision is a progressive advance and gives great hope of taking the tariff away from politics, lobbying and log-rolling; that the bill gives protection to agriculture for the market of its products and to several industries in need of such protection for the wage of their labor; that with returning normal conditions our foreign trade will continue to expand.

TARIFF BILL SEEN AS UNITING EUROPE

Continent Is Able to Subsist Alone, French Minister of Commerce Says.

U. S. IS HELD IN ERROR

Paris, June 15 (A.P.).—Newspapers commented at length today on the new American tariff.

"At the most important crossroads of their march onward to progress, the United States have chosen the wrong road," says Le Quotidien, organ of the Radical Herriot Party.

Le Temps calls it "The most resolutely protectionist in the history of the United States."

Opening the new Chamber of Commerce at Cambrai, Pierre Etienne Flandin, minister of commerce, made what was interpreted as an official reference to the tariff bill.

He reviewed the world economic crisis, admitting that France was suffering in her balance of trade, and remarked: "The mere elevation of the tariff customs wall is too summary a remedy. We oppose it.

Then he referred to the scheme for a "United States of Europe" as a possible relief.

"All accounts would be drawn up should Europe pool its resources to meet its needs," he said. Europe could subsist alone without any great hardships to anyone, at th esame time increasing its power of expansion and reducing its costs and prices."

the proposed treaty, the position of the United States in this respect has been materially weakened.

"The physical, mental and moral standards of the officers of our Army and Navy are of the highest. No body of men in the world are as carefully selected as they and no men receive a finer and more thorough training. Their lives are at the service of our country at all times and they of all men are most anxious for the establishment of conditions for the preservation of honorable, permanent peace. They know that the surest way to preserve peace is by maintaining an adequate national defense and they are the most competent authorities in the world on that subject. Support for the treaty should not be sought by attempts to belittle and break the spirit and morale of these splendid men. It should be remembered that they are not permitted to answer attacks in the public press."

Jerusalem Shops Are Shut in Strike

Reprieve Sought for Trio of Arabs Condemned After Rioting.

Jerusalem, June 15 (A.P.).—Some Christian and nearly all Moslem shops closed today following the Arab executive's proclamation of a strike to protest the execution of three Arabs next Tuesday for their part in the Arab-Jewish disturbances last summer.

Nearly all denominations in Palestine have joined the Arab appeal, and it is understood that a last-minute effort has been made to get the Zionist executive to move for a reprieve.

An Arab afternoon paper here publishes a dispatch from Acre, where the condemned men are imprisoned, saying, "Youth will rise in case of execution. We strongly demand that the government grant amnesty, or gunpowder may explode." An Arab paper at Haifasa declares that if the execution is carried out, "June 17 will become a day on which a spark will be kindled not only in Palestine, but throughout all Arab countries. We do not say this as a phrase, but as advice to the government in avoiding disturbances."

OLAYA LAUDS U. S. IN RADIO ADDRESS

President-Elect of Colombia Cites Cordial Relations Between Nations.

NETWORK CARRIES TALK

"Far from being the most materialistic" country in the world, the United States is comprised of a "people whose national activities are prompted by a fruitful idealism and by an earnest desire to be of service to humanity," President-elect Enrique Olaya, of Colombia, declared yesterday afternoon in an address from Station WMAL over the Columbia System network.

The speaker, for eight years the diplomatic representative of Colombia at Washington, spoke familiarly of this country, its ideals, and its citizens, explaining that during his stay in the National Capital he kept in touch with all parts of the country. Charles Stephenson Smith, chief of the foreign service of the Associated Press, introduced him.

"I am leaving your country filled with admiration for the energy, resourcefulness, initiative and other great qualities of your people," he said. "But, beyond everything else, I am impressed with the idealism and spirit of service of the people of the United States."

Turning to his native land, Dr. Olaya expressed the hope that closer relationships between the residents of this Nation and Colombia would develop.

"Colombia is a land of unbounded natural resources which we have hardly begun to utilize," he asserted. "At the present time more than $300,000,000 of capital from the United States is invested in my country, and I think it is no exaggeration to say that this investment has been a source of profit both to the investor and to the people of Colombia."

"The commercial relations between Colombia and the United States are on an exceedingly satisfactory basis. The exports of Colombia to this country are nearly five times the exports to all the other countries in the world."

Concluding, he said: "I visualize the years to come as a period of close and fruitful cooperation between Colombia and the United States."

again before train time. The president-elect had "done" Washington two days ago. So, riding in an open White House car, accompanied by Mr. Akerson, Col. Hodges and Capt. Train, the President's military and naval aides, Brazil's next president had a last look at the Capitol, the Treasury and others of the Government buildings.

The ceremonies at the station were short. Secretary Stimson cordially shook hands and bade farewell to the distinguished visitor. Gen. Summerall, chief of staff, represented the Secretary of War, and Admiral Hhughes, chief of naval operations, represented the Secretary of the Navy. A considerable crowd cheered Dr. Prestes on his arrival at the station.

Dr. Prestes, accompanied by Brazilian Ambassador de Amarel, and a large staff, went to New York City to the Hotel Ambassador. Among the trips to be taken by Dr. Prestes before sailing for England on Saturday is a visit to West Point. On Tuesday night he will be the guest of honor at a diner at the Commodore Hotel, given by the Pan American Society, the American Brazilian Association and the Merchants Association. On Wednesday Dr. Prestes wil lreceive the degree of doctor of laws from the University of Pennsylvania.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Weary, but happy, after a round of receptions and enteretainment in Washington, President-elect Julio Prestes of Brazil arrived in New York tonight accompanied by his son, Fernando, and a large party.

taken to Marlboro Saturday night. Eleven of them, rudely snatched from enjoying a chicken dinner, were charged with disorderly conduct.

James Elder, colored, of Marlboro, was charged with possession of three quarts. He was the only Maryland man in the lot, the others being residents of the District.

James Hawkins, colored, was charged with operating a club without a license and running a disorderly house. Both of these men were held in hte Marlboro Jail. Preliminary hearing were held before Justice of the Peace Thomas D. Griffiths of Forestville.

Those taking part in the raid were Deputy Sheriffs A. W. Hepburn and Harry Robinson, and County Policeman Frank Prince.

Twenty-three Face Hearings.

The 23 men and women who were arrested by special raiding squads in the Saturday night series of raids will appear before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage all this week, a few each day. This is a departure from the usual custom, as usually preliminary hearings are held before judges in Police Court.

Another new procedure was explained to the prisoners when they were arrested Saturday night. They could not be released until arraigned before the commissioner, and the commissioner, by instructions, could not be found until 11:15 o'clock. After he had been located and the case had been brought before him, bond was set. Most of the prisoners were out before the night was over.

The raids Saturday night were the most spectacular drive yet on the liquor traffic. Thirteen simultaneous raids, all made at 7 o'clock, netted the prisoners, 1,467 bottles of beer, and 189 quarts of distilled liquor. Fifteen revenue agents and 75 policemen took part in the series. Sergts. Letterman and Little led their own squads.

GILBERT'S LAST REPORT BARES GERMANY ECONOMIC SITUATION

tent far exceeding expectations of experts," are undoubtedly ample to meet all legitimate demands for public expenditure including the Young plan payments, Mr. Gilbert charged that determination to keep expenditures down had been lacking.

The budget for 1929-30, with an apparent gross deficit of about 1,075 millions of marks was characterized in the report as perhaps the most unsatisfactory since stabilization.

National Income Rises.

"There is evidence of unwillingness on the part of both Government and parliament squarely and promptly to face the situation by taking the necessary steps either to control expenditures or to provide adequate resources to cover them," the report said. "The budget of the Reich, it is clear, has not suffered from lack of revenues though it has been shown in the past year that the great increases of previous years can not be counted on to recur indefinitely and that there are practical limits beyond which taxation can not well be pushed."

The report says the Reich's public debt rose 1,043 millions during the past year to 20,353 million marks, with the German national income standing at 70,000,000,000 marks, which latter sum is about 30 per cent higher than the national income five years ago. Allowances being made for growth in population and changes in price level, the national income has risen by 15 per cent per capita.

Savings bank deposits at the end of 1929 aggregated 9,000,000,000. Regarding wages, the average level increased about 3 per cent in the past year, which is less than half the previous year's rise.

Foreign Trade Outlook.

Social expenditures, says the report, constitute one of the principal budget charges. They have grown from 259,000,000 to 1,345,000,000 in the course of the last five years.

The maintenance of the foreign trade balance may be regarded, the report states, as the most promising commercial development. On the whole, the value of exports has risen steadily since the reestablishment of orderly conditions after the inflation period. Statistics show the average year to year increase to be about 1,000,000,000 marks.

The agricultural situation remains a big problem, the report pointed out. This arises largely from conditions confronting agriculture the world over, including the falling prices at which the 1929 crop was sold. Conditions special to Germany were a factor in this agricultural depression, the report says. Statistics cited show German agriculturaliste are 7,262,000,000 marks in debt. The report details proposed governmental measures to relieve that situation.

French Savant to Harness Gulf Stream for its Heat

Dr. George Claude to Convert Power Into Electricity in Big Plant in Cuba; Plan Held Perfectly Feasible by Other Scientists.

Matanzas, Cuba, June 15 (A.P.).—The visionary plan of a French scientist of harnessing the gulf stream and converting its warmth into energy sufficient to turn the wheels of industry today was declared nearing the stage of a practical demonstration.

After years of costly experiments Prof. George Claude said he has completed a tube, 1,700 yards long, which he soon will lower into the sea to serve as a pipe line from the gulf stream to a power plant he has erected at his laboratory along the gulf shore here.

His theory is that the gulf stream wafers, being subjected to vacuum, will rise to the boiling point and produce steam sufficient to turn great turbines for generating electric power.

The tube will rest in a channel on the bottom o' the sea. A year ago he submerged a tube of smaller proportions and lesser strength, but it was rendered unserviceable by strong undercurrents. Elaborate preparations for sinking the new tube have been made, including the building of a railway track, a mile and a quarter long, over the water.

The laboratory where Prof. Claude has been conducting his experiments covers nearly an acre. At the rear of the main building he has constructed enormous buildings where the mechanical work is being done. He declared the project when completed will comprise the largest power plant in existence.

Recently Dr. Claude submitted a paper on his experiments to the Academy of Science at Paris and was assured his plan was practical. A survey of the project was made yesterday by two engineers of the Cuban department of public works, who expressed themselves as elated over its possibilities.

TEXAS CLOUDBURSTS KILL NINE PERSONS

Five of Family Are Drowned When Freshet Washes Away Home.

LIGHTNING KILLS TWO

Dallas, Tex., June 15 (A.P.).—Nine persons were dead tonight as a result of storms and sudden floods in West Texas during the last three days.

The bodies of Oscar Tidwell, his wife and their two children, Oscar, jr., 8, and Edna Bell, 17, were recovered Saturday from the waters of Lake Creek, in Knox County, after a sudden freshet caused by a heavy rain washed away their home near Goree. The body of Mrs. W. M. Gilliland, 80, Mrs. Tidwell's mother, was recovered today from Lake Creek.

Lightning Kills Two.

Mrs. Morris Durham and Mrs. Cora Whitaker were killed when struck by a bolt of lightning during a severe storm at Lamesa last night. Five others in the home of Mrs. Durham were injured.

Lindsey Phillips, 15, of near Kirven, was drowned Saturday when his automobile ran off the road into Tehuacana Creek, near Fairfield. P. C. Lee, of Luling, drowned Friday night when his automobile was swept from a creek crossing near San Angelo.

Heavy rains from Monohans to Sweetwater, along the Texas & Pacific Railway, sent freshets over the highways near Westbrook. Lamesa reported the heaviest rain in years.

Train Service Suspended.

Flood waters of Threadgill Creek wrecked the historic old Langes Mill in the Doss community, near Fredericksburg. In Gillespie County ranch homes were wrecked. Many residents along arroyos and small creeks were forced to flee their homes as unprecedents rises sent waters of Beaver Creek out of banks in several places in Mason County.

Track washouts were experienced by the Orient, Wichita Valley and Wichitat Falls and Southern railways. Train service between San Angelo and Sterling was suspended.

Crops were believed benefited where they were not washed away and ranges were helped, but the heavy downpours, of cloudburst proportions in many places, interrupted grain harvesting.

TARIFF ROW LIVENS MAINE G. O. P. RACE

Representative, Two Others Seek Nomination for U. S. Senate.

VOTING SET FOR TODAY

Portland, Me., June 15 (A.P.).—Republican candidates for nomination in the Maine primary election today reached the end of the campaign trail with an eleventh-hour attack by Representative Wallace H. White, of Lewiston, senatorial aspirant, against the "vacillations" of his opponent, former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, on the tariff question.

In addition to naming one of three candidates for Senator Arthur R. Gould's seat in the national body, Republican voters tomorrow also will choose their nominee for governor and a congressional nominee from the second Maine district.

The Democratic primary had but one contest, with Arthur Hersey, of Auburn, and Albert Beliveau, of Rumford, seeking the nomination for United States representative from the second district. Edward C. Moran, jr., of Rockland, and Frank H. Haskell, of Portland, were unopposed as the party's candidates, respectively, for governor and United States senator.

Governor William Tudor Gardiner and former Mayor John Wilson, of Bangor, opose eacph other in the Republican gubernatorial race. Wilson has assailed Gov. Gardiner's administration as being extravagant, while the governor has confined his campaign to the benefits he claimed his administration had produced.

Interst centered on the triangular contest between White, Brewster and Dugal Dewar, Portland broker and antiprohibitionist, for the senatorial toga. Dewar, a newcomer to Maine politics, has based his campaign on repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Brewster and White have merely reaffirmed their "dryness" without making an issue of Dewar's stand.

The contest for the Republican nomination in the Second District is between Frederick P. Bonney, Rangeley, Zelma M. Dwinal, amden, and Donald B. Partridge, Norway.

MINNESOTA G. O. P. WILL BALLOT TODAY

Two Tariff Bill Foes and Wet Seek Nomination for Senator.

OLD FEUD BLAZES AGAIN

St. Paul, June 15 (A.P.).—Minnesota Republicans will choose a United States senatorial nominee Monday from among three men—two outspoken opponents of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill passed by Congress, the third espousing only repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

It will bring to a head old political feud between Senator Thomas D. Schall and Gov. Theodore Christianson, leaders of two powerful factions of the party in the State, who revealed no differences on major national issues during the campaign. Instead the campaign had ended tonight in a blaze of personal bitterness, a note which predominated throughout the campaign after Schall in his keynote made a savage attack on Christianson's record as governor. Both oppose the tariff revision, attacking it because it is not limited to farm products.

John F. Selb, a newcomer in State politics, is the third aspirant for the senatorial nomination, and made his appeal entirely to those favoring repeal or modification of national prohibition. His opponents support prohibition but have kept the issue in the background.

In addition Republicans will select nominees for State and congressional offices at the primary Monday in preparation for the general election in November. Farmer-Laborites will choose between Knud Wefald and Ernest Lunden in making their party senatorial nomination. Einar Hoidale, unopposed Democratic candidate for the senatorship, has precipitated the principal issue between the two Farmer-Laborites, Lunden charging that Wefald contemplates withdrawal after the primary to bring about fusion of the two minority parties in the State in the general election campaign, with Hoidale to receive his support.

For governor, Republicans will choose from J. A. Burnquist, former governor; Ray P. Chase, State auditor; N. J. Holmberg, State commissioner of agriculture; Albert Lagerstedt, State legislator; Dr. Elvind Klaveness, a physician, and Paul F. Dehnel, a newspaper editor.

Farm-labor voters have a contest for governor between Floyd B. Olson, outstanding leader of the party in the State, and Carl E. Taylor, a farmer who has made no serious campaign. Democrats have only one minor State contest to settle and Edward Indrehus is unopposed for the nomination for governor.

CITY CALLS COUNCIL TO PLAN GANG WAR

Mayor of Chicago Considers Removing Two Heads of Police Force.

CIVIC LEADERS TO MEET

Chicago, June 15 (A.P.).—Chicago's hopes for decisive action against crime tonight rested with the political and civic leaders who will assemble tomorrow to devise plans for combatting gang lawlessness.

Spurred by the wave of public indignation that has engulfed the city since the slaying of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter, Mayor William Hale Thompson, long reticent, was reported authoritatively to have called a meeting of his advisory cabinet for tomorrow.

The mayor has summoned his administration wheel horses—County Treasurer George F. Harding, Cook County Republican Committee Chairman Bernard W. Snow, Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson and Eugene R. Pike—to consider the removal of Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Detective Chief John Stege, who have been under fire for their efforts against gangsters.

Citizens to Demand Show Down.

At the same time the executive committee, senior council and directorate of the Association of Commerce, will go into secret session with 50 men, selected for their prominence in business and professional ranks, to "demand a showdown from the people responsible for continuing the gangs in power."

Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the association, said the conference was called because of "a complete breakdown of law and order and would develop measures to maintain government and protect citizens."

Alderman Asks Inquiry.

Alderman Arthur F. Albert announced today that if the mayor and his unofficial cabinet appointed successors to Russell and Stege he would contest the move on the ground the nominations could legally be made only in cooperation with and by consent of the city council.

The alderman said he would introduce a resolution to the city council Wednesday demanding a thorough investigation of the police department by a committee composed of aldermen and civil service commissioners, regardless of developments in the Lingle case.

Albert said the resolution would also recommend the naming of Capt. Thomas Condon and Capt. James Allman police commissioner and detective chief, respectively. The alderman said he had enlisted a number of supporters.

Alderman Albert, attorney for the city council police committee, said he would question Commissioner Russell about the existence of gang syndicates, the progress of the department toward the solution of gang slayings and his plans for the future conduct of the department when he appears before that body tomorrow.

Meanwhile, no clues toward the identity or motive of the assassin who shot down Lingle last Monday were forthcoming.

Two hundred and fifty-three prisoners, suspected of various crimes and taken with almost 3,000 others in the detective squad raids that followed the Lingle murder, paraded in the regular show-up at police headquarters tonight. The squads brought in 700 men over the week-end.

Group Fleeing Russia Drifts Eight Days; Safe

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 15 (A.P.).—Terribly exhausted after drifting eight days on the Black Sea, 40 refugees from Russia have arrived at the Bulgarian port of Varna, said a dispatch received here today.

The party, which included 15 women and 4 children, said they had left Cherson, Russia, in a sailing boat. They lost their bearings during the voyage. They refused to say why they fled from Russia.

Cherson is a town on the Dnieper River in Russia. Varna is in Bulgaria, about 150 miles across the Black Sea from Constantinople.

PRESIDENT DENIES SUPPORTING MORROW

give the impression that he was Mr. Hoover's candidate, but his workers have in many and devious ways.

The Morrow workers have given considerable thought as to how they should deal with this strategy, too, but until the Bair statement nothing had been evolved. Mr. Morrow has made frequent reference to Mr. Hoover, carrying on in fact as if there could not possibly be anything to the story that Mr. Fort was the President's candidate. Mr. Morrow has lauded the President's naval parley and his administration generally.

The atmosphere at Newark where the headquarters of the thre candidates are located, is all Morrow. One feels an air of dejection even in the camps of Frelinghuysen and Fort.

But if many Democrats heed the call of Dr. James K. Shields, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, to go into the Republican primary and vote for Mr. Fort, or if the Democratic boss of Hudson County, Frank Hague, throws any Democrats into the primary against Mr. Morrow, the gentleman will certainly have trouble.

One big factor in his behalf is the belief that thousands of persons who commute between New York and Jersey will show a greater interest in Tuesday's fight than they have heretofore shown in Jersey politics.

For the time being it would seem that Senator Baird made a right bold move and got away fairly luckily with it.

Mr. Hoover does not say he is against Mr. Morrow, which has been the widespread impression that his workers have had to combat.

FLIER HELD AS SHIP KILLS TRIO IN AUTO

Newhall and Van Meter tried three times to get their plane off the ground, first taxiing in a southwesterly direction, then southeasterly, and finally to the north, directly toward the track and the cars tsill parked around it.

Their last try was nearly successful. They got up a few feet. Then their engine faltered and the heavy plane ived straight for the cars. The undercarriage and the propeller tore into the Brockman car an dwas badly damaged. The wings damaged three others.

Brockman and his wife both died instantly, their heads crushed, as the propeller bit through the car. The baby an dMrs. Sterling were brought to St. Margaret's Hospital here and the baby died soon afterward. Mrs. Sterling has a skull fracture and is not expected to live.

Newhall and Van Meyer, both of Chicago, are attached to the 108th Observation Squadron, a part of the Illinois National Guard. They were recently ordered to the Chicago municipal airport to perpare for the Army air show to be held there this month. Earlier in the day they flew to the race track from Chicago.

BUCHAREST DENIES RETURN OF LUPESCU

Companion of Carol May Not Ever Come Back, Says High Official.

DIVORCE STILL BINDING

Bucharest, Roumania, June 15.—Denial that Mme. Magda Lupescu, companion of King Carol II when he was only a prince in exile, has any intention of returning here at present, was issued by a high official today.

The statement said the report that Mme. Lupescu was hurrying here to prevent a reconciliation between Carol and his divorced wife, Queen Helen, had originated with newspaper correspondents here and at Budapest, Hungary. One rumor was that she would be made one of Queen Helen's ladies of honor, while another credited Mme. Lupescu with planning the coup which brought Carol home from exile in his successful bid for the throne.

The latter story said Mme. Lupescu had refused to accompany Carol in the airplane which brought him to Roumania, but was following him by train.

"Please set the mind of the world at ease regarding Mme. Lupescu," said the statement. "She is too astute a person to return to Bucharest for a long time, if ever. She has her income, and knows she can not induce Carol, now that he has taken the decisive plunge, to draw his mind away from the serious work awaiting him."

The statement added that Mme. Lupescu realized too well how much mischief she caused through her relations with Carol in the first place. It was while Carol was with Mme. Lupescu that Queen Helen divorced him.

Premier Juliu Maniu, recapitulating recent events in the Chamber of Deputies, said that when he communicated to the government the news that Carol had started homeward, it was unanimously agreed, amid jubilation, to allow the prince to enter the country. Carol has conferred the dignity of marshals of war on Gens. Avarescu and Prezan.

It was learned today that the divorce of King Carol II and Queen Helen has been morallly, but not legally, annulled. The holy synod of the Roumanian Orthodox Church announced to the king, through a delegation of high prelates, that it had decided not to recognize the divorce, thus making it morally nonexistent, but added that full legal annullment could come only through the courts that granted the decree to Helen two years ago.

Meanwhile, friends of the royal family believe that a reconciliation of the king and queen is not far off.

King Carol was said to be ill from overwork and tomorrow may go to Castle Pelesch, in Sinaia, for a three-day rest. His departure has not been definitely fixed, and depends on his condition.

Southern Cross Ocean Hop May Be Week Away

Dublin, June 15 (A.P.).—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator, fears he may have to wait another week before beginning a flight to the United States in the famous airplane Southern Cross.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith and his three companions were ready at any moment last week to take off, but were foiled each time by bad weather somewhere over the ocean. Weather reports tonight indicated a strong westerly breeze with low clouds and rain over most of the Atlantic.

1930 TO BE BANNER YEAR FOR U. S. ELECTRICAL COMPANIES

Equipment Shares Rising Faster Than Industrials

High Index in This Group Anticipating Future Gains, Fisher Asserts; Light Thrown on Stock Prices and Earnings of Group.

By IRVING FISHER
(Professor of Economics, Yale University).

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., June 15.—The excellent business done by the electrical equipment companies thus far this year, in volume exceeding that of any like period in 1928, and the uniformly higher trend of electrical equipment stock prices as compared with my all-industrials index, as due in large degree to steady growth in the use of power, aided by inventions. The price-index of all-industrials has recovered by about 30 per cent from the loss occasioned by the stock market crash. But the electrical equipment group has recovered by more than 60 per cent, that is, at more than double the all-industrials rate.

Charles M. Ripley, engineer for the General Electric Co., recently recalled to Boston investment bankers that whereas it took 23 years for the power companies to obtain their first million customers, they now add a million customers every year. Moreover, each American factory worker now has three times as many machines, chiefly electric power-driven, working for him as the average British worker, and he turns out three times as much in goods.

Group of electrical equipment stocks has recovered from loss of stock market crash at more than double the rate of recovery in all industrial stocks.

Consumption of electricity for old uses goes on apace, while new uses are constantly being announced. This increases the expectation of future gains. More railroads are being electrified. More homes are being wired, with added facilities in them for domestic electrical conveniences. Factories and ships are being fitted with new devices for electrical control. The expansion of public utilities makes fresh demands for electrical equipment.

There is the constant growth of lighting for highways and farms. More equipment is being produced for floodlighting airports, athletic fields and buildings. There is the demand, with spreading knowledge of the health-giving results of sun-ray lamps, for the extension of domestic equipment in this department. There is the field of television, as yet unexploited, but just demonstrated as commercially possible in large theaters. There are other wholly unexploited fields, with great potentialities. These factors help account for the recent extraordinary rise in average price of electrical equipment stocks above most other groups.

It is quite natural that new developments and inventions should result in sending up the ratio or price of these stocks to earnings. For what gives stocks their increments of value is anticipated future earnings, after new processes shall have had time to work.

This answers an oft-repeated question. Take, for example, the reported earnings of General Electric during 1929, of only $2.24 a share on its more than 28,800,000 shares outstanding. These shares currently sell above $82. That amounts to less than 3 per cent earnings, and the dividend of $1.60 per share yields less than 2 per cent. But the situation is really better than that.

There is a surplus earnings account of more than $90,000,000; the balance sheets show $135,000,000 betterment, besides unapportioned surplus earnings of associated companies of more than $28,000,000. Moreover, among General Electric's assets, valued nominally at $2, are the millions spent during the past five years on research, besides patents and appliances. The plant account shows capacity for earning of $49,000,000 during 1929, an increase of $17,000,000 over 1925. For depreciation and plant reserve there was, at the close of 1929, more than 76 per cent of the gross carrying value of plants and equipment.

The earning capacity of the General Electric plant, $49,000,000, net income from sales during 1929, is almost 10 per cent of its half-billion valuation. It is nearly 9 per cent of the total market value of the company's outstanding securities during 1925. That means that the stock market correctly discounted, during 1925, anticipated future earnings of General Electric in 1929, as reflected in price of its stocks during 1925. Expansion of the electrical equipment industry is proceeding today at least as rapidly as in the past five years. This largely explains the present high range of prices of common shares in the electrical equipment group

STOCKS HAVE WORST DROP SINCE CRASH

Almost Primary Low Is Reached of October 29; Decline in All Groups.

FOREIGNS ALSO ARE OFF

By H. B. BROUGHAM
(Irving Fisher Service).

Common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange continued the decline that began June 2 through Thursday of last week, causing the index to suffer the sharpest recession since the 1929 crash. The index on June 12 of 139.9 was but half an index point above the primary low on October 29, 1929, and 14 per cent above the November 13 low of 122.7, having lost 60 per cent of the gain made from November 13 to April 11 at 165.6. Of the 320 stocks in the Irving Fisher selection, 83 per cent of the stocks were off in price at last week's close, 3 per cent up and 14 per cent showed no change.

Daily Values Traded Rise.

From a low of $108,100,000 in the week of June 6, the average daily value of tradings in all stocks rose by $118,600,000 last week, or 110 per cent, to $226,800,000, Tuesday's trading the highest in four weeks.

Traded values of common industrial stocks rose by 99 per cent to $168,500,000, with all of the groups registering increases.

Public utilities led, up $28,800,000, showing a 165 per cent gain over the preceding week's low of $17,100,000.

Radios and theaters were up $12,500,000, steels and electrical equipment up $11,900,000, machinery and railroad equipment up $9,100,000, oils up $8,400,000, miscellaneous stocks up $6,000,000 and chemicals up $5,800,000.

Foreign Stocks Take Drop.

The situation of stock prices in foreign markets becomes serious, as London and Paris stocks dropped last week to new lows in worst market since the 1929 crash. Berlin stocks have enjoyed a long period of rising prices this year, so that, in spite of last week's drop, the level is still 2.3 per cent above the November low of 83.5.

Industrial Common Stocks.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1929 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

COMMODITY PRICE SITUATION DARKER

Wholesale Level Drops Off to 87; No More Hopeful in Europe.

DOLLAR STILL GAINING

The commodity price situation took an even darker hue last week when the wholesale price level dropped off 0.68 per cent to a mark of 87.0. (1926 equals 100.) Conversely, the purchasing power of the dollar rose to 115, or in other words, the dollar at this time will buy 15 cents worth of goods more than that of the dollar of 1926.

The decline of the commodity price level was at a rate above the average of 0.52, which has been maintained for the last nine weeks. The number of falls in commodity groups increased from 71 per cent the preceding week to 76 per cent last week.

The condition of the commodity markets abroad seems no more hopeful than that of the United States. Prices in France suffered a sharp decline last week, dropping 0.74 per cent to a new low of 80.8. The English price index fell to 79.3, while that of Germany receded to 93.5, after one week of rising prices.

The agricultural products division was the chief offender in last week's further decline of the wholesale commodity price level, going off 1.32 per cent to a new low of 90.0.

RAIN AGAIN FAVORS SPRING WHEAT AREA

Temperature Too Low for Rapid Growth of Cotton in Southeast.

WEATHER AID TO CORN

Showers in Northern spring wheat areas provided abundant moisture for the greater part of the belt last week. Weather conditions were favorable to winter wheat harvesting in the Southwest, and prospects are that it will soon begin in Kansas and Missouri.

Cotton is growing slowly. Where dampness has prevailed a grassy condition is noted. Except in some southeastern districts, temperatures have been too low for rapid growth.

Corn has also made only slow growth, with color poor in some sections. Replanting is about completed. Last week's weather was in general favorable to growth.

A canteen with a one-cent limit, selling pads, pencils, candy and toys, had been established. Children at the camp act as storekeeper. Miss Grace V. Maguire, superintendent of the camp, says that the children would welcome more picture books and games for quiet periods.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

"Your Uncle Dudley" used to be one of those by-words, years ago, like "So's Your Old Man."

Now the National Theater Players come with a play called "Your Uncle Dudley, the first time in Washington. It opens tonight down in the E street playhouse.

This particular play was fashioned for the late Raymond Hitchcock, known in the musical comedy world as Hitchy-Koo. Though many believe Hitchcock's appearance in "Your Uncle Dudley" marked his first attempt at straight comedy, that is not so. There were other plays that engaged his unique personality. He played the lead role on the road in Don Marquis' comedy, "The Old Soak." And though he was the Old Soak to the life, Hitchy-Koo, in all his career, never tasted an alcoholic beverage.

Last year's Broadway successes are about to start for the road—or what's left of the road. One of the first that will appear in the provinces, so-called, is David Belasco's success, "It's a Wise Father." It gets going as early as next month, on the way to the West. In one of the lead roles is Minor Watson, known here for his work as leading man with the National Theater Players—and before that with many road shows that played the Capital.

Mr. Romaine Callender, after a strenuous session with heavy parts, has a letdown this week in "Your Uncle Dudley"; but what worries him is that he must, perforce, play the part of a 23-year-old fellow—having the rare opportunity of making love to Marion Wells. That isn't what nettles him, though; not quite. What Romaine wants to know is how a man of 35—he is that—can plumb the shallowness of a sanguine youth of 23. Why ask me?

On July 25, David Belasco will celebrate his seventy-seventh birthday. The festivities are to take place in Atlantic City, where the grand old man of the theater intends to make a startling announcement—to the effect that he has several new plays to be released during the next season. Just what these plays are remains to be seen, but one is known: An adaptation by the Hattons of a Hungarian comedy with the bizarre title, "The Giglo and the Princess," which shows, of course, that Mr. Belasco is not feeling his 76 years.

Of the new musical revues to take Broadway, one of the first to get started is the 1930, or Parisian-Riviera, edition of "Artists and Models." It has Phil Baker and his accordion and several flashes of fleshy ladies, according to the first-line reviewers. Also, according to them, that's all it needs.

Missing Boy, 9, Sought By Washington Police

Police were asked yesterday to search for Lawrence Monroe Campbell, 9 years old, of 701 Fourth street northwest, who disappeared from his home Saturday morning.

The boy was reported absent to the police by his parents. The father said the lad had never absented himself before without leave and believes that he may have joined other boys on a week-end camping trip. Young Campbell was described as weighing about 65 pounds, having sandy hair, and blue eyes. When he left he wore a blue checkered shirt, light corduroy trousers and white tennis shoes.

CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS.

Senator Oddie well expresses public opinion when he enters a remonstrance against the criticism that has been leveled at naval officers by Secretary Stimson and others because of their testimony in regard to the naval treaty. The public remarks made by the head of the State Department in disparagement of naval officers were most injudicious, and richly deserve a rebuke from the President and a protest from the Secretary of the Navy. It is well known that naval officers are unable to reply to such attacks. The Secretary of the Navy is in a position to defend the personnel of the Navy, and in the circumstances he should do so.

The harmonious workings of the executive departments are not promoted by such outbursts as that of Secretary Stimson. His position requires him to be careful of his utterances. He has no authority over the Navy or its officers, and they have not earned a rebuff at his hands by intruding into political or diplomatic affairs. Their testimony was required of them. The questions they were called upon to answer dealt with technical naval questions as bearing upon the national defense. They told the truth as they saw it, and the opinions they expressed were convincing, because of the high character and special qualifications of the witnesses.

When Secretary Stimson appeared before the Senate committee he found occasion to praise many of the officers who were later criticized by him. He sought to fortify the naval treaty by stating that the American naval advisers and technical assistants were unanimously in favor of it, although several of them, including Admiral Jones, were known to be opposed to it as enfeebling the national defense. Each naval officer, when called, analyzed the treaty from a naval viewpoint, and all but two or three of them revealed that Mr. Stimson was mistaken when he assured the committee that they unanimously supported the treaty. Mr. Stimson found nothing to criticize in the attitude of the naval officers until they repudiated his statement that they unanimously favored the treaty.

The Senate and the public have been impressed by the fact that so many naval officers of high rank and broad experience are skeptical as to the benefits of the naval treaty. The disappointing results of former conferences reinforce the views of these officers. They have not presumed to discuss political considerations, but on the other hand they have not shirked their obligation to tell the truth concerning matters with which they are especially familiar.

If the treaty should be ratified it will be because the Senate and the people are convinced that the temporary cessation of naval rivalry is accomplished by the treaty, and that this is a contribution to world tranquillity and peace which warrants taking the risk involved in disregarding the warnings of conscientious naval authorities. This decision, if made, will not be a disparagement of the vision, information, or patriotism of naval officers, but will be rather an adventure in the political field, in the hope that fair weather will prevail during the excursion. If foul weather should appear the country will run back to its captains quickly enough.

CONTROVERSY OVER SHIPS.

President Hoover proposes to have a committee of business men pass on another controversial question affecting the Government, this time with respect to American shipping policies. He would have such a committee, with the approval of the Shipping Board, review bids for the purchase of two key transatlantic freight services, the Black Diamond and Cosmopolitan lines, and advise as to the merits of the various proposals. His action comes at a time when the board, authorized by Congress to execute all Government ship sales, has indicated that it stands 5 to 2 in favor of accepting the bid of the United States Lines, so as to strengthen the position of that concern in the highly competitive North Atlantic trade.

The controversy over the projected sale grows out of the insistence of the present managing operators of the two freight lines that they should be awarded these services because of preference provisions of the merchant marine act of 1920. The admiralty counsel of the Shipping Board has held that no provision in the law requires the board to award the services to the operators.

The President's committee is also expected to report on the question of lending some $60,000,000 of Federal funds to the United States Lines to aid in the construction of two new Leviathans. This aid is authorized by the shipping law, and the company's contract with the Shipping Board stipulates that advances from the construction loan fund shall be provided for replacements. Plans for the vessels, together with an application for loans up to three-fourths of the construction cost, estimated at $30,000,000 each, have been submitted to the Shipping Board.

GERMAN BONDS.

Chairman McFadden, of the House committee on banking and currency, does not propose to permit any banking institution allied with the Federal Reserve System, or any bank operating under a Federal charter, to buy or hold any of the German reparation bonds which are offered for sale at alluring figures by some of the bond houses of New York.

It is not, apparently, through fear that the interest on the obligations of the German Reich will be defaulted, or that the principal will not be paid at maturity. The chairman of the banking committee is afraid that if institutions operating under authority of the United States invest in the obligations of the German Republic they would entangle the country in the reparations settlements. Mr. McFadden fathers a resolution which in its preamble sets forth that although "it is the declared policy of the State and Treasury Departments that there shall be no intermingling of reparation payment of war debts, provision is made for the commercialization and annual sale of a portion of the German reparation bonds in the United States and other countries, and that the purchase of such bonds by citizens or banks in the United States would result in the mingling of reparation bonds with war debts." Therefore, the Pennsylvania member would have Congress adopt a resolution which would prohibit Federal Reserve banks, national banks or banks operating under the Federal Reserve System from purchasing any of these bonds or certificates of indebtedness under penalty of forfeiture of their rights and privileges.

It is doubtful if Mr. McFadden will be able to secure consideration for his resolution during the remaining days of the session. His warning, however, may be heeded by some investors. The first installment of the bond issue has been oversubscribed by investors who have no fear of future complications.

GIVE JACK HIS CHANCE.

Every boy who enlists in the Army may aspire to the four stars on his collar which indicate the rank of the general of the Army of the United States. "Every soldier of France carries a field marshal's baton in his knapsack," said Napoleon, and while the office of field marshal is unknown in the American military establishment, the equivalent rank is attainable by any American boy, even though he never saw the inside of a military school. So also the highest rank in the United States Marine Corps may be reached by that American boy's brother who starts as a Marine, even though he never matriculated at Annapolis. But the third brother, who decides to answer the call of the sea and enlists in the Navy, can not hope to reach flag rank, no matter what ability he may develop.

The railsplitter or the canal mule driver may, and has, become President of the republic, but he could not have become a commander in the Navy. No enlisted man can be promoted to a grade above that of ensign. That grade is co-equal with that of second lieutenant in the Marine Corps or the Army.

It is proposed by Representative Johnson, of South Dakota, himself an enlisted man in the Army during the World War until he won his commission, to enact legislation which will give to the boy who enlists "before the mast" in the Navy an opportunity to reach higher rank than that of ensign. Not until the beginning of the present century could an enlisted man aspire to a rank higher than that of warrant officer. Thirty years ago Congress provided that warrant officers selected as such because of special ability should, after six years' service, be commissioned as ensigns. Subsequent efforts to enact legislation to authorize such specially fitted young men to climb even one grade higher were defeated, although they may receive the pay and allowances of a lieutenant.

The Johnson bill, if enacted, will permit this class of specialists in seamanship, gunnery, engineering, &c., to be commissioned as lieutenants, junior grade, with the opportunity to gain promotion up to the grade of lieutenant commander. This would remove a bar against capable men who have been unable to enter the service through the Naval Academy, and give them the opportunity to reach the rank of commissioned officers. This opportunity is enjoyed by enlisted men in the Marines and the Army.

ELECTRIC TRAINS.

From Pittsburgh comes the report that the Pennsylvania Railroad officials propose to shorten the time between New York and Chicago by lopping off six hours from the schedule. The railroad people assert, however, that high speed for long distances can only be achieved by the substitution of electric power for steam. Already the New York and Philadelphia divisions of the Pennsylvania are being prepared for electrification and plans for similar changes in the Pittsburgh district, through which gateway 8,000 cars are now moved daily, are in preparation.

That electrical propulsion over long distances is not only feasible but practical has been demonstrated in the operation of the Pacific division of the "Milwaukee" road; the method of propulsive power known as the "oil electric" has been used by the Canadian National Railways for some years. That company ran a train from Montreal to Vancouver in 1925, a distance of 2,937 miles, without a stop. This was a continuous run of 67 hours at an average speed of 43.50 miles an hour.

Twenty-five years ago the rivalry between the New York Central and the Pennsylvania for passenger traffic was so great that first one and then the other advertised "eighteen hour trains" between New York and Chicago. But several serious accidents followed, and forced the cessation of this speed contest.

The development of aerial navigation now permits a traveler to go from coast to coast in one daylight ride through the air and a couple of nights in a Pullman. But Americans generally are not yet educated to the airplane, and the railroads, realizing the necessity for greater speed, are coming to electricity. The Pennsylvania, which will be the first railroad in the East to substitute electricity for steam over long distances, will require at least six years in which to make the substitution. In the meantime builders of dirigibles may really be able to provide safe transportation at a rate of fare as low as that fixed by the railroads.

CRUISER POSSIBILITIES

By COMMANDER HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

In a series of three articles published in The Washington Post on April 28, 29 and 30 a comparison was drawn between 8-inch and 6-inch cruisers. For simplicity and to present a distinct contrast between the two types we selected on one hand a 9-gun, 10,000-ton, 8-inch cruiser, and on the other a 9-gun, 7,400-ton, 6-inch cruiser. The conclusion of these articles was that a given tonnage of 8-inch ships was about 10 per cent better than an equal tonnage of 6-inch craft.

The purpose of the present article is to suggest that there are other types of 6-inch cruisers and that they have very interesting possibilities.

Grand Admiral von Tirpitz based the remarkable development of the German navy upon one simple idea. The first essential of a warship, he thought, was that it should keep afloat and maneuver at its designed speed. So he gave priority to the protection of his ships against the effect of hits by projectiles, torpedoes and mines. That accomplished, he gave consideration to speeds and armaments.

The British navy, on the other hand, accepted the Fisher theory of ship design. That admiral held that it was the gun that counted, and he gave slight consideration to protection. Early in the war the fine battleship Audacious was sunk by a single mine. A battle cruiser narrowly escaped the same fate at the Dardanelles. On the other hand, mines had slight effect on the German capital ships. The battle cruiser Goeben, in fact, suffered six mine explosions. Though no dry dock was available for repairs she still remained an effective fighting ship.

At Jutland the 11-inch guns of the Von der Tann sank the Indefatigable despite her 12-inch armament. A few minutes later the 13.5-inch Queen Mary blew up under the fire of the 12-inch Derfflinger. The British battleship Marlborough just barely escaped sinking as the result of a single torpedo hit. The Seydlitz, on the contrary, survived about 25 hits by large projectiles as well as that of a torpedo.

These results demonstrated even to the British that the theory of Tirpitz was far superior to that of bluff John Fisher. So they made haste to gird their battle cruisers with more layers of armor to give them a fighting chance against their German rivals.

We have traced already how the 8-inch cruiser was developed from the raider-chasing Hawkins class. It is an irony of fate that a type of large cruisers virtually unarmored should develop all over the world just after the battles of the war had demonstrated conclusively the inability of such craft to contend against more lightly armed but more heavily armored vessels of the same size and speed. In this type so much consideration has been given to the guns that the armor is useless against 8-inch projectiles and only partly effective against 6-inch. If we can believe unofficial data, the Japanese alone have avoided this glaring defect, but even their armor, while good against 6-inch shells, is only partly effective against 8-inch. That this lack of protection of the 8-inch cruiser type is an important defect is now becoming generally recognized.

Fortunately the United States, alone among naval powers, has the opportunity to remedy this defect in part. All the British and Japanese 8-inch cruisers permitted by the treaty are either built or building. Additional armor would weigh them down beyond their tonnage limitations. We, on the other hand, have still eight 8-inch ships to lay down. At all costs—even if a reduction to six guns is necessary—they should be armored against 8-inch shell fire. Eight ships of this design would give us an immense advantage over the other naval powers, for there is no question that the next war will again vindicate the Von Tirpitz theory.

The same idea may be applied to the 73,000 tons of 6-inch cruisers permitted us by the treaty. They may be built to the full limit of 10,000 tons; and there is no limit whatever on the armor they can carry. In the design of these ships absolute priority should be given to the provision of armor to stop 8-inch projectiles. In addition they can be given endurance, speed and planes equal to 8-inch cruisers. Their battery should be at least nine, and probably twelve 6-inch guns in triple turrets.

It is believed that such 6-inch cruisers would be at least the equal of the British 8-inch type and very slightly, if at all, inferior to the Japanese 8-inch ships. They would be overwhelmingly superior to any other 6-inch cruisers or armed merchant vessels.

By a special provision of the treaty landing decks for airplanes may be fitted to 81,000 tons of our cruisers. Flying-off platforms may be fitted to all. Suppose we were to design a 10,000-ton ship with six or nine 6-inch guns in turrets forward and a landing deck and four catapults aft. Below the deck would be a hangar for some twenty light bombing planes, capable of carrying 300-pound bombs. In endurance and speed it would equal 8-inch cruisers and be armored against 8-inch projectiles. It is unnecessary to point out the many advantages of such a ship on the scouting line, in trade warfare and in battle. Its many interesting possibilities required that most careful consideration be given the suggestion to apply some of our 6-inch cruiser tonnage to this type.

For a long time we have been urging the building of destroyer leaders. Some of our 6-inch cruiser tonnage may be utilized for this purpose, provided the individual ships are over 1,850 tons—the dividing line between the cruiser and destroyer categories. The provision of these ships would increase considerably the effectiveness of our destroyer force.

The following is a suggestion for the utilization of our 73,000 tons of 6-inch cruisers:

40,000 tons—four 12-gun, 10,000-ton cruisers, armored against 8-inch shell.

20,000 tons—two 9-gun, 20-plane, 10,000-ton cruiser-carriers, armored against 8-inch shell.

13,000 tons—six 2,166-ton, five 5-inch, 35-knot destroyer leaders, carrying twelve torpedo tubes.

It is essential that our remaining eight 8-inch cruisers be given absolute—not partial—protection against 8-inch projectiles at any sacrifice of their other characteristics that may be necessary.

Somebody's Always Taking the Joy Out of Life.

A Dog Is Easier to Trap Than a Fox Because It Doesn't Learn Caution as a Pup.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SINCE the great war ended, many men in many lands have said: "There will be no more war.

"It has become too devastating. Nations dare not invite annihilation."

The fear of destruction will not prevent war, however, any more than the fear of hanging will prevent murder.

Passion does not count the cost.

Wars continue generation after generation because human passions continue, and because those who know the horror of armed conflict grow old and die, and a new generation, thrilled by martial music and history's tales of valor, will not learn its bitter lessons except by experience.

Yet there is hope of lasting peace—a reasonable hope based on the discovery that war doesn't pay.

Wars never have paid since the day when conquerors fought solely for loot and employed organized force to enrich themselves as frankly and brutally as gangsters do now.

Every war fought since that age of pillage and robbery has been unnecessary and unprofitable; for every purpose achieved by resort to arms—whether liberty or justice or commercial advantage—has been achieved by other nations without the shedding of blood.

If a few peoples have won freedom on the battlefields, many more now have equal or greater freedom obtained without firing a shot.

If a few have won new markets with the bayonet, more have won by underselling competition.

If a few have conquered new territory by force, others have gained control by the simple process of moving in.

War, with all its frightful cost, has won no victory not duplicated by the methods of peace.

Now men know that war never can return a profit—that modern methods will make any possible victory cost more than it is worth.

In that truth is the hope of the world, for the chief desire of men is to prosper.

Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also.

His heart will be in peace, for his treasure is in peace.

War will end because it doesn't pay, but it will not end until the people know the truth.

In all lands the coming generation must be taught the truth in the schools that now teach the bloody romance of history.

Until that is done, it remains the first business of government to do all things possible to protect the poor driven cattle who must do the fighting if war comes again.

But it need not come again if statesmen eager to avert it will provide an international text book to teach youth the futility of it and the inevitable loss to victor and vanquished alike.

PRESS COMMENT.

One Horrible Example.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: But the exact field of a congressional investigating committee should be defined by the House or Senate, and it should keep strictly within those limits. Otherwise, as has been shown by the Caraway committee's performances, a potentially useful inquiry may degenerate into a political fishing expedition.

THE ONCE OVER

TUNING OUT ON A QUARTERLY REPORT.

The Radio Corporation of America will omit its regular quarterly report to stockholders by special permission of the stock exchange. It will give autographed photos of Amos 'n' Andy instead.

The report was already a month late before this announcement was made, but most stockholders were not alarmed over not getting it. They thought it must be weak batteries.

The Radio Corporation says the shareholders will have to wait until the end of the first six months, at which time it may give the complete report with television pictures.

In giving a reason for the postponement the corporation explains that the numerous mergers within mergers have made the business facts so intricate that even the directors can't understand them on a short wave length.

The best mathematicians in the corporation are now at work going over all the books in an effort to separate the figures from the static. Business is good, the Radio Corporation insists, but a little too complicated to make ideal entertainment for the average home-owner with a four-bulb set.

The ruling leaves stockholders in a position where they can get an idea of the Radio Corporation's financial situation only by listening at the loudspeaker during a lightning storm.

The suggestion is made by Elmer Twitchell that, to facilitate matters and make the financial statements clearer to the general public, the semiannual report be made direct from the bookkeeping department by Graham McNamee, play by play.

With Floyd Gibbons, summing up at the finish line, and the Kingfish announcing whether the radio engineers have as yet perfected any device which will enable a stockholder to tell how far away a dividend is.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Louisiana a Mighty State and Should not Be Judged by Huey Long, Says Indignant Subscriber.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of recent date, stating that Gov. Huey Long, of Louisiana, has contributed toward bringing Louisiana into prominence as a "backward State," or words of that effect, is a direct affront to the citizenry of that State.

As the writer of the editorial in all probability has never been any farther south than Alexandria, I will set forth a few facts which may enlighten him as well as the public you have misguided. New Orleans, the principal city, is at least the equal of Washington in population, but is far more metropolitan, commercialized, and modern, having at least a half dozen office buildings twice the height of the local Press Building, having a main street wider than Pennsylvania avenue, and being the second port of the United States, New York only ranking ahead. The leading city in the northern part of the State is Shreveport, a modern city of close to 80,000. It is a fact that no town in Louisiana, having a population of 500 or more is without its own power plant, and the use of electricity in the State has increased 20 times since 1922.

Gov. Long is not popular with the people of the State, as their attempt to impeach him last year indicates. The State of Louisiana can no more be judged by its chief executive than can the United States be judged by its present administration.

A LOUISIANAN.

Reading Between the Lines of the Treaty-Making Clause — Shall the Senate's Information Be Subject to the Advice and Consent of the Prime Minister?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Appertaining to the ratification of the London naval treaty, my guess is that all this talk about so-called secret documents is much ado about nothing. At the same time I have an idea that if the administration gets by with its proposed treaty-making policy it will be setting a very dangerous precedent.

The claim of Secretary Stimson that diplomatic loose ends connected with the writing of a treaty are not proper for the use of a Senate committee sounds a good deal like a pedantic pedagogue talking down to his pupils.

The Constitution provides that the President "shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur." The natural supposition is that in advising and consenting the senators should have all the facts before them, and there does not seem to be any hint of a third course of action in the treaty-making process. Yet instructing a committee as to the means by which it may properly ratify a treaty looks very much like it.

Mighty loose construction of the Constitution, is it not, to read between the lines that the Senate's information shall be regulated by the advice and consent of the prime minister?

FEDERALIST.

Secret Treaties Impossible Under the American System—People Entitled to Full Information.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I don't see why foreign governments should be surprised and take offense if any matter having to do with their negotiation is made public in the ratification of treaties by the Senate. "We, the people," established this Government, and, in negotiating a treaty with it, foreigners should get rid of the Old World idea that the people should be trusted with only as much information "as is good for them." The treaty-making clause of the Constitution was written as a safeguard against secret treaties.

European diplomats are naturally inclined to slur the fact, but there is one English publicist whose clear recognition of what the Constitution stands for I beg leave to quote. H. G. Wells, in "The Outline of History," having noted that "the President has great powers, but they are subject to the control of the Senate," says:

"The foreign relations of the country are thus under open and public control. Secret treaties are impossible under such a system, and foreign powers complain of the difficulty and uncertainty of 'understandings' with the United States, a very excellent state of affairs. The United States is constitutionally incapacitated, therefore, from the kind of foreign policy that has kept Europe for so long constantly on the verge of war."

GREATNESS.

That man is great
Whatever be his place
Who meets his duty
Squarely, face to face;
Who, without flinching
Labors at his tasks
And, for himself,
No favor ever asks.

That man is great
By every human test
Who, without murmur,
Gives to life his best;
Who is to others
Tenderly inclined
But never asks
His neighbor to be kind.

That man is great
Whatever critics say
Who, for himself
Prefers the sterner way.
And in his heart
Has pity to bestow,
But to himself
No pity cares to show.

That man is great
Whatever be his post,
Who asks the least
And gladly gives the most.
Who holds himself
A righteous life to live
And yet the faults
Of others can forgive.

Capital Group Dinner Guests Of de Padillas

Lady Lindsay Unable to Attend Fete Given in Her Honor.

BRILLIANT Sunday night dinners have long been a custom in Washington and last evening the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla entertained a distinguished group in honor of the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay and the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Though the dinner was given in honor of the charming wife of the British envoy, she was unable to attend, and Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, elder daughter of the Belgian Ambassador and Princess de Ligne was invited in her place.

The other guests were Representative Sol Bloom and Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the American Ambassador to Rome, who has recently returned to this country for the summer and will go soon to their summer home in the Green Spring Valley near Baltimore. Mr. Garrett is still in Princeton, N. J., where he went on his arrival in this country to attend the commencement exercises at Princeton University, of which he is a graduate.

Also at the dinner last evening were Mr. and Mrs. B. Sumner Welles, Mr. Theodore Marriner, of the State Department; Mrs. von Kathoven, Brig. Gen. Charles Macawley, Miss Helen Manley, daughter of the former United States Military Attache in Madrid; Senor Ricardo Padilla, younger son of the Ambassador and Senora de Padilla, and Senorita Rosa de Padilla.

Today the elder son of the Padillas, Senor Don Ramon Padilla, will arrive in New York on the Roma, and will come immediately to Washington to assume his duties as Second Secretary of Embassy.

On Tuesday, June 25, Senora de Padilla, with her younger daughter, Senorita Marichu Padilla, and Senor Ricardo Padilla, will sail from New York on the Cristobal Colon for their home in Spain, where they will pass the summer.

The Ambassador and Senorita Rosa Padilla will join them there in July.

Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner. Will Give Dinner Tonight.

Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner will entertain at dinner this evening at the Cavalier, Virginia Beach, Va., in honor of Miss Mary Lucretia Bitler, daughter of Commodore and Mrs. Reuben O. Bitler, and her fiance, Ensign John Zabilsky, U. S. N., and the bridal party. After dinner Mrs. Hagner will take her guests to the Cavalier Beach Club to dance. The marriage of Miss Bitler and Ensign Zabilsky will take place at Old St. Paul Church, Norfolk, Va., Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Knauss, of Bethlehem, Pa., and Mr. Paul Minnich, of Allentown, Pa., took place at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. Paul's Chapel of the Epiphany Lutheran Church with the Rev. Henry W. Snyder officiating.

The bride wore a gown of flesh-tint chiffon fashioned in the prevailing mode with high waistline and long full skirt. Her hat was of Swiss lace braid with orchid ribbon trimming. She wore slippers of orchid moire and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of tea roses, lilies of the valley and orchid sweet peas.

Mrs. Leon E. Snyder was the bride's only attendant. She wore flowered chiffon with green predominating and with green accessories. She carried a bouquet of apricot sweet peas.

Mr. Leon E. Snyder acted as best man for Mr. Minnich.

A small reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon E. Snyder on Connecticut avenue for the intimate friends of the young couple.

The bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. Wilcox, came from Denver, and his brother, Philip, from El Paso.

The entire first floor of the inn was set apart for the wedding party and the lounge was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Rev. Leon Bliss, pastor of the Atascadero Community Church, officiated.

Miss Edgarita Webster, of Los Angeles, was maid of honor, and Miss Mary Alice Bartholomew, of Atascadero, bridesmaid. Dr. Wilcox's brother, Mr. Philip Wilcox, was his best man. Belin Friends Surprised as He Quits Post

Diplomat at London Was Slated for Position at White House.

Just as it was beginning to be noised abroad that Mr. Lamoi Belin was slated to succeed Mr. Warren Delano Robbins as ceremonials officer at the White House, came news of Mr. Belin's resignation from the foreign service. This came as something of a shock to his friends in Washington and as a great surprise, since they had thought Mr. and Mrs. Belin would be rejoiced at the prospect of being on duty in Washington and living again at Evermay.

Since Mr. Belin was detached from duty at the State Department to go to Constantinople and later to the embassy in London, Evermay, the beautiful old estate in Georgetown which he and Mrs. Belin purchased several years ago and restored so lovingly, has been let and at present it is occupied by Representative Ruth Baker Pratt.

"Personal reasons" are advanced as the cause of Mr. Belin's resignation, as they have been for the resignation of so many really distinguished foreign service officers of late—such men as Mr. William Phillips, former Minister to Canada; Mr. John Van A. MacMurray, erstwhile Minister to China, and a dozen others.

Mr. Belin served as secretary to the London naval conference and apparently suffered from overwork, for as soon as the conclave was over he went off to the south of France for a rest. Mr. Belin's successor as First Secretary of the American Embassy in London will be Mr. James Clement Dunn, who preceded Mr. Robbins in the White House post which Mr. Belin has now declined with thanks.

Mrs. Walter Lewis Treadway, wife of Assistant Surgeon General Treadway, of the United States Public Health Service, has returned to her home at 2400 Sixteenth street after several weeks in Illinois visiting with her mother, Mrs. Mary Houston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment are leaving today for New York and will be at the Hotel Plaza until Friday, when they are sailing on the Olympic, to be abroad until October.

Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston will give an illustrated account of the picturesque out-door fairs of Paris at the Arts Club tomorrow evening. This talk is to serve as an introduction to the discussion of the "Faire aux Croutes," to be given at the Arts Club in October. Miss Johnston will show in her pictures reproductions of the Paris Ham and Iron Fair, Gingerbread Fair and Grand Guignol. Maj. and Mrs. John D. Kirkpatrick will be the hosts tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Summers en Route To Home in Walla Walla.

Mrs. John W. Summers, wife of Representative Summers, is passing a few days with her daughters, Hope and Jean, at Evanston, Ill., before going to her home in Walla Walla, Wash.

Mrs. Summers will also attend the commencement exercises at Northwestern University in Evanston, of which she is an alumna.

Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn and her daughter, Helen, will pass several weeks this month at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., and will later sail for Europe, where they will visit the musical centers of the continent.

The marriage of Mr. Charles Lewis Dickson, formerly of Washington, and Miss Elsie Corbett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Corbett, of New York, will be solemnized on Friday in New York. Mr. Dickson is the son of Mrs. Samuel Henry Dickson, who now makes her home at Nantucket, Mass., and of the late Capt. Dickson, Medical Corps, U. S. N. His mother was formerly Miss Henrietta George, of Baltimore.

The engagement was announced recently by Mr. and Mrs. Corbett.

Miss Corbett is descended, on her father's side, from an old Shropshire family. Her mother is the daughter of Mrs. J. Wilcox Brown, of Baltimore, and the late Mr. Brown. She attended the Foxcroft and Oldfields Schools.

WOMEN CALLED OUT BY GANDHI LEADERS

"Throw Aside Veils, Quit Old Purdah, Let Men Cook," Says Statement.

CAMPAIGN MADE WIDER

Calcutta, India, June 15 (A.P.).—Followers of Mahatma Gandhi in his civil disobedience campaign today proclaimed that "purdah," the seclusion of women, is doomed, since women have left the privacy of their homes to aid in the struggle for independence.

They exulted today in the fact that Indian women, who for centuries preferred the seclusion of their homes, had received what was considered a new world status by the Simon commission, which took particular cognizance of women's part in the disobedience struggle. Spokesmen said women had shaken off the "purdah" chrysalis, enabling them to see and help in the Gandhi fight with unveiled eyes.

In furtherance of the movement, Gandhi's subalterns today issued a new appeal, as follows:

"Away with ancient purdah! Come out of the kitchens quick! Fling the pots and pans rattling into corners! Tear the cloth from your eyes and see the new world. Let your husbands and brothers cook for themselves! There is much work to be done to make India a nation!"

The activities of the women in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and other centers will soon be concentrated upon making a success of the nationalist boycott against British materials. These include chiefly clothes, household articles and tobacco. Simultaneously they will encourage India to use home-made fabrics, the women taking a leading part in picketing shops selling foreign dress goods.

Various other movements are designed to deprive the government of excise duties. One of the women's themes will be advocacy of a dry India. Following Gandhi's lead, they will appeal to men and women to cease drinking grog or toddy made from the juice of the palm. They will also urge the destruction of toddy palms throughout the country. The drawing of fermented toddy and its sale, controlled by the government, and license fees and excise duties form a prolific source of income for the government.

Women in the independence movement have been credited with stopping football games between Indians and Europeans on Calcutta's great open space in the city's center, known as Maidan. Thousands formerly assembled there evenings to watch the games.

Because of efforts made by women pickets and women members of the civil disobedience committee, the Bengali clubs withdrew from the Monsoon League. All games they missed were canceled, the women contending that Indians should do picketing instead of playing football now.

The women's Indian Association of Madras considers the independence campaign the antithesis of the wars of the past. They proudly point to the resignation of a woman doctor, Muthulakshmi Ammal, from her seat in the Madras Legislative Council, and from her office as deputy president of the council, as a protest against Gandhi's imprisonment. The association boasts also that a woman, Sarojini Naidu, poet, orator, "peacemaker of India, its ambassadress to three contents," led the biggest raid on the British salt monopoly.

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., June 15—Potomac River clear and Shenandoah muddy.

Sturdy bodies are a feature of the Ford Truck

WITH their ample loading-space and carefully planned dimensions, the new Ford truck bodies meet a wide range of haulage requirements. The platform body illustrated is the foundation-unit for several types which are designed for many industrial, commercial and agricultural purposes. Among them is the standard stake body with stakes 26 inches high.

The platform body may be used with either the open or enclosed cab. It is built of heavy, seasoned hardwood, enclosed in a pressed-steel frame.

In common with all Ford bodies, the platform type gains in appearance through the improvements recently made in the front of the truck. Radiator and hood are higher and narrower. Front fenders meet the running-boards in a more sweeping line. Cabs have been redesigned for better appearance and afford the driver full comfort.

A number of new and important features have been incorporated in the Ford truck chassis. Among them are a spiral bevel-gear rear axle, a four-speed transmission, a heavier front axle and spring, larger brakes and a power take-off opening. Dual rear wheels are optional at small additional cost. You have a choice of two gear ratios.

In addition to the important new mechanical features of the chassis, these strong, good-looking and serviceable bodies increase the value of the Ford truck and broaden its range of usefulness.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS: Janet Decker, 18, and extraordinarily pretty, is a stenographer clerk in the Peerless Employment Bureau. She gets a call, while alone in the office, from a Mr. Temple at the Mount Tobe Airport, asking for a stenographer with "plenty of nerve" to serve as flying secretary to Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co. She agrees to see if she can find such a girl. Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, and sadly soft on Janet, runs up to have a word with her while Miss Miller, who runs the employment bureau, is at lunch. Fred asks if he may come out tonight, but she tells him she already has a date with Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office at the Mount Tobe Airport. Fred takes advantage of the opportunity at hand, takes Janet in his arms and kisses her. At that moment Miss Miller walks in and, after giving Fred a silent invitation to make himself scarce, fires Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I've been offered a new job," Janet said.

CHAPTER TWO.

Out of a job . . . And how!

Under the circumstances she should have been more discouraged than ever. But Janet wasn't that kind of a girl.

Being fired was an experience. In a sense it was an adventure, not the sort of an adventure one would go to any great pains to arrange, to be sure, but, having come, rather fun as compared with the prospect of going on and on and on, typing, filing, checking, typing, filing, checking . . . humdrum . . . endless humdrum.

When she came to the bottom of the stairs, the clock on the green read one-thirty-five. Fred was not in sight. Evidently he had not expected that she would follow him so quickly.

"Sweet boy," Janet thought as she hurried toward Exchange Place. "First time he ever kissed me like that. Didn't know he was kissing me out of a job, I'll bet. But it was worth it . . . "

Bernice Terrell was prancing up and down before Nick's news-stand when Janet turned the corner.

"Well here you are at last. Seven minutes late. Thought you were going to be here early today?"

Janet held up a protesting hand. "Listen, Bernie," she warned, "I'm in no mood to be bawled out, if you know what I mean. I've just had the law read to me once and I wont need another lecture for a long time. I've been fired."

"What am I supposed to say now?" Bernice inquired. "Or do I just laugh that one off and ask you another?"

"Go on, be funny. Do I look like a comedian? I said I'd just been fired, and I meant it. Miss Miller came in from lunch and found me and Fred in a clinch."

Bernice was beginning to be impressed. "No kidding, do you mean that, Jan?"

Janet nodded. "It was a nice kiss, Bernie. Did you ever have a fellow take you in his arms, and hold you tight, and—and—oh, gosh! What's the use? You can't describe it. Fred was sure in form today."

Bernice said: "Jan, You're terrible, Fired for kissing a young ignoramus in the office and raving about the kiss instead of the job. What's your mother going to say?"

"Probably congratulate me," said Janet sarcastically. "Thank goodness, the crowd's thinning out; we'll be able to get up to the counter for a change."

They fought their way into the West Main Lunch and by due process of one-arm lunch system, finally filled their trays and parked themselves off in a corner.

"What did Fred do, Jan? Was he scared? Did Miss Miller blow up? come on, tell me about it."

Janet turned up one of those detestable sugar spouts and watched her coffee rise to the rim. She had a sweet tooth and she fed it well.

She said to Bernice: "You know what I think, Bernice? I've got a hunch my luck is changing today. At 12 o'clock I was six feet deep in mud and mire, and now, less than two hours later, I'm out of a job and in line for the biggest chance I ever had."

"Another surprise?" Bernice made a grimace to suggest that she could be shocked no more. "When it rains, it comes in gross lots. Somebody propose?"

"Propose what? Something improper? No such luck. Listen, I've got a chance at a job that'd be heaven to anything I ever dreamed about . . ."

She gave Bernice a detailed report of Temple's call.

"And such a voice. Gosh, I can hardly wait to see him!" she declared. "And that's not all. From what he tells me, this Tolbert has a son who is a lady-killer. Suppose he fell for me, Bernice . . . Hot baby! There's several million dollars tied up in that family. Can you see me running around in one of these gasoline drawing rooms . . . ?"

"Wake up," said Bernice. "He can't see you at the office tomorrow; you won't be there."

"Exactly. And I can't see him at home. So here's my plan: You'll fix it up with your mother and I'll see him at your house; and what's more, you'll save me a nickel by calling the airport and explaining matters."

Bernice was plainly puzzled. "Explain what?"

"You tell him your talking for me and that there's a girl at your address who wants the job. If it looks like I'm getting away with it, I'll tell him who I am. If not I'll give him your name."

Bernice threatened to throw a butter dish. "You do and I'll take the job," she threatened. "I can fix it up with Mama all right, Jan, and you're welcome to meet him there. I hope he turns out to be old and decrepit and a woman-hater," she added with mock severity.

Janet laughed. "He may be at that," she admitted; "but there's still the eminent son of the boss left to conjure with. Mr. Temple said he was the gods' gift to the ladies. Well, I'm no Helen of Troy, Burnie, but I've known young men to fall in love with me. Fred, for example, is getting real serious about it. And Henry Frenda's coming out to the house tonight after begging for months on end . . . Gee! Bernie, if I could only get the job! But I've got a feeling Mud is going to break up the furniture when I tell her about it."

"If she doesn't break you up when she hears you've been fired, I miss my guess," Bernice declared. "As for the flying part, you're just cuckoo enough to do it. But not for mine. It's hard enough to live down here on the ground without flirting with trouble up there."

When Bernice rushed off to get back to her job in Cooney's laundry, Janet began an aimless tour of the stores on South Main and Bank streets.

The windows were full of attractive dresses, dresses prettier than any she had ever had, dresses she wanted so very badly . . . dresses she would really need if she could persuade Mr. Temple that she was the girl to take dictation aloft from Mr. Tolbert.

"If," she thought savagely. "It's always 'if.' But I'll certainly give that boy a mean line. And 'if' he hires me, I'll get clothes some way. I've got to. This thing is about all I've got that's fit to wear."

The eternal feminine. She wore as natty a brown tweed as ever draped a boyish silhouette, barely two weeks old, and bought at the usual sacrifice. But she would, of course, talk about it as if it were something akin to a dish towel. We all do.

Out of a job. Nothing to do but wander from shop to shop, inspecting little frocks she hadn't money to buy. And as carefree and happy as a field sparrow in a patch of sunlight. Blessed Janet!

It was almost six-thirty when she turned into her house on Highland avenue, more tired than she had ever been after a full day at the office.

Mrs. Decker was darning socks by the west window in the dining room. Janet's younger sister, Margaret, was setting the table for supper.

Janet could hear her father putting his tools away on the back porch and humming bits of an old melody.

"Snap it up, sis," Margaret greeted her. "Chow'll be on in about two minutes."

"Don't be vulgar, Marge," Janet corrected her. "Call things by their right names . . . How you, Mud?"

"All right, I guess," Mrs. Decker replied wearily. "Anything happen at the office?"

It was a mechanical question, but tonight it gave Janet a slight shock. She couldn't tell her mother she had lost her place at the employment bureau.

"Nothing special." And then, quite casually: "I've been offered a new job."

She gave her mother the bare facts from Temple's conversation, leaving her to assume that Temple had definitely offered her the place.

"If it's up at the flying field," Mrs. Decker asked quickly, "how do you know they won't ask you to go up in one of those airplanes sometime?"

"Oh, they will, Mud. That's a part of the job. I'll have to fly and sometimes I'll have to go off on long trips. Understand, I haven't really got the place yet, but it's almost the same thing. Miss Miller understands I'm to leave Saturday."

Mrs. Decker dropped her hands in her lap and looked at her daughter in amazement. "You don't know what you're saying, Janet. You know I wouldn't ever agree to your going up in an airplane. And as for running all over the country in one with a strange man, it's out of the question!"

Janet threw up her hands in despair. "I might have known it. You treat me like I was a 2-year-old and then you wonder why I'm restless. Everybody flies now, Mud. There's nothing to it any more. It's as safe as rolling around in a baby carriage. And you know very well I'm able to take care of myself with one man or a dozen, airplane cabin or mountain lodge."

But Mrs. Decker hardly heard her. "Why in the world did you tell Miss Miller you'd quit before you talked to me? Now she'll probably go and look for another girl and you'll be out of work. I wish you weren't so headstrong, Janet."

Mr. Decker came in and stood in the kitchen doorway until Janet went over and kissed him. "You and your mother arguing again? I never saw such women. What's the debate this time?"

Janet stopped her mother with an anxious gesture. "Tell him about it after supper, Mud. Henry Frenda's coming over to take me out in that steamroller of his and I've got to change my dress. . . . I'll be out in a minute, Marge," she called to her sister as she ran into her bedroom and slammed the door.

"Minute, my grandmother!" said Margaret to no one in particular. "She'll be primping for half an hour."

Henry Frenda's steamroller made its presence known just as Janet slipped into an apron and prepared to help with the dishes. She promptly struck a bargain with Margaret whereby the latter was to receive a generous contribution toward a neckpiece she had raved about for weeks, if she would do the dishes alone.

"I'm satisfied," Margaret told her in an undertone; "but what you want to go out with that gauky Henry Frenda for is a crossword puzzle to me."

"Your're young, darling," said Janet. "Sometimes these gauky boys surprise you. But it won't be long before the line will be forming on the right for you and then my heart'll be broken. I do wish you wouldn't grow up, Marge. You're almost sixteen." She kissed her hurriedly and ran out to the living room to find Mr. Decker putting Henry through the third degree on aviation. She caught up her coat and hat, and pushed Henry out the door.

"Sorry, Dad," she laughed, "but this big boy has got to get me back early. Be sure to get Mud to tell you what we were talking about before supper. That's about aviation, too."

Mr. Decker waved them out amiably and went in search of his favorite piece of literature, a vividly illustrated history of the Spanish-American War.

"Hmm!" said Janet as she sat down beside Henry in the highly individualistic roadster. "I seem to be sitting on something besides a cushion."

Upon investigation, she discovered that she had sat on a book. She held it under the dash light and saw that it was "Practical Flight Training," by Lieut. Barrett Studley, U. S. N.

"Gee, that sounds interesting," she declared. "It's all about flying, isn't it? You know, I think I'd like to read that, Henry. Is it yours?"

For a moment Henry gave his entire attention to a flank maneuver that took the car around a corner and on to Chase Park driveway. "You want to read it, sure enough?" he asked after a time. "Go ahead. You can have it if you want, Janet. I've got about all I can out of it."

Janet thanked him profusely. "I understand you're drumming up trade for the Peerless Employment Bureau, Henry. Mr. Temple called today and said you'd told him I might help him find a stenographer."

Sure I did. I heard him say Mr. Tolbert wanted a stenog who wasn't afraid to fly, and I figured if anybody could find the right girl, you could. I didn't tell him, Janet, but I was hoping you'd take the job yourself."

"You talk like I could get it for the asking."

"I'll bet you could, too," Henry declared. "Anybody'd hire a girl like you, Janet." A moment later he said: "I wish you would take the job. We live just about a good city block from the edge of the field, and I know my mother'd be tickled to death to have you to lunch sometime. I guess you already know I work in the Administration Building, don't you?"

"Mr. Temple told me today. Is Mr. Temple nice, Henry?"

"Oh, he's all right, but I don't think you'd like him. He's a regular devil when he gets mad. But if you're coming out there and fall in love with somebody besides me, I hope you don't come. Don't you care for me a little bit, Janet?"

Hmm! What are you stopping this wagon for? You're sure batty if you're expecting a petting party?"

Henry knew by experience that it was no use. He stepped on the gas and pulled back on the highway. "You don't treat me right, Janet. If you knew how much I love you, you'd act different."

Janet put a hand on his arm. "Listen, Henry," she said sweetly. "I like you enough, and that's that. Now let's talk about something else. Tell me about your work. Are you making any progress?"

Henry was a favorite subject with Henry. "I'm getting along great," he declared. "Wouldn't be surprised if I could buy out the airport in a few years. Did I tell you about the boarder at our house?"

"Never heard of him," Janet assured him. "Is he anything unusual?"

"He's filthy with money, anyhow, and that's enough for me. He's a big lumber man from Maine and he's looking over the forests around the valley. You ought to see the way he throws money around. Gave me $10 for taking a letter down town to the postoffice the other night and another ten for taking a book up to Mr. Belter at the field."

"Gosh! He must have it to burn."

"He sure has, but he's funny. Up at all hours of the night, and running off to Boston every few days for something or other. But I should worry as long as he hands out the cash. I've got over $100 in the bank now, with what he gave me."

"That's wonderful," said Janet, and she thought of the number of pretty little frocks she could buy with $100. Some people have all the luck. She wondered what Henry would say if she asked him to lend her $100. Probably fall out of the car.

When at last they came to a stop in front of the Decker home again, Henry said: "I'm going to be rich some day, Janet, and I'll bet you'll like me better then. Would you marry me if I was rich, Janet?"

Janet got out of the machine and put the book Henry had given her under her arm. "Listen, Henry," she said quietly; "the way I feel right now, I think I'd marry anybody if he was rich enough to make it worth while. Now go on home and figure that one out."

• • • •

Mr. Decker and Margaret had gone to bed, but Mrs. Decker was waiting up. Janet sensed trouble the moment she saw her mother.

"Janet," she said before her daughter could get her things off, "I called up Miss Miller at her home after you left to tell her you wouldn't quit Saturday."

Janet said nothing.

"She told me what happened and I'm ashamed of you. I don't know what you could have been thinking about to let a boy kiss you, at the office or anywhere else."

"Aw, Mud, what's the harm in a kiss?" And then, seeing that her mother was preparing to answer the question with more spirit than Janet cared to hear, she added: "Miss Miller got worked up too quick, anyway. She talked like I'd been doing the same thing every time she went out of the office. I'm glad I'm out of there."

"Well, you needn't be," Mrs. Decker told her. "I told Miss Miller you were sorry about it, and she said she was willing to let by-gones be by-gones and take you back."

Janet cried: "I'm not going back. I'd die first. I'm out of there, and I'm going to stay out."

A little later Mrs. Decker turned out the light on the piano and started to her room. At the door she stopped and looked back at the little figure curled up on one end of the couch. "Go to bed now, Janet. Good night."

There was no answer. She heard a little sob and caught at her own throat. Then she went into her room and closed the door quietly.

Poor kid. Looks like it's back to the old job. But not if Janet has anything to do with it. Tomorrow Fred gives her something to think about and Temple—but wait and see!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

DAHLIAS.

THE greatest authorities on dahlias tell us to plant them between the fifteenth of May and the fourth of July. They also tell us to set them four feet apart each way. When you work among your plants in September you will realize the worth of this advice.

The stakes which are used for dahlias are practical when made of cypress, one inch in diameter and six feet in length. They last longer if they are painted.

So often at this time readers tell me that their tubers are dry and then ask me if it is possible to soak them in water. This is the only solution. Soaking them in water for a few hours previous to planting will give them an opportunity to absorb some moisture. This same method may be applied to setting out green plants. If, when removing them from their pots, the soil is very dry, dip the ball of earth about their roots in a pail of water.

In planting young plants set them so that the first point above the pot is below the level of the soil. Always plant green plants on a wet or a cloudy day. If you can not do this work on a wet day, be sure to water them as soon as they are in the soil. When setting out plants which have been several days in transportation it will repay you to afford them some shade for a day or two. Do not make the mistake of arranging so complete a shade that the plants do not have a perfect circulation of air at all times.

Make it a rule with all dahlias to cultivate them twice each week. This permits the soil bacteria to function and at the same time prevents an accumulation of weeds, which if permitted to remain will absorb a large percentage of the nutritive principle from the soil. Deep cultivation may be practiced at first, but later when the roots are come close to the surface, use shallow cultivation. At this stage of the plant's development most growers prefer a mulch, feeling that it will aid in the conservation of moisture and at the same time prevent any injury to the feeding roots.

As the dahlia always develops its flowers in sprays of three or occasionally four flowers, all flower buds except the center one should be removed as soon as noticed.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

BROWNS BEAT NATS ON WEST'S ERROR IN 9TH, 3-2

Pegler

NEW YORK, June 15.—The question of whether or not the name of Max Schmeling will be given space on the shaft of the Muldoon-Tunney monument, which purports to be the trophy of the heavyweight championship of the world, seems to be of little interest to any one but the members of the committee charged with the solemn responsibility of deciding the matter. Max Schmeling won the championship on a foul from a man who was beating him handily up to the moment of the foul, and he is now preparing to take to the road for an exhibition tour to sell the byproduct of the title.

He is rich now, by the standards of his fatherland, and not a pauper by the standards of the United States, but he will be much more wealthy by the time he takes to the rink again one year from now. In the work of sweating the championship, Herr Schmeling today made an auspicious beginning. A newsreel photographer called on him at the Commodore Hotel wishing to shoot a little footage of him, accompanied by a few words of salutation to his public in his Weber and Fields dialect.

"Sure," Herr Schmeling said, "I am glad to do this, but"—and just here his accent cleared and he spoke in very precise English—"how much am I offered for this service?"

"Every inch a champion," exclaimed the newsreel gentleman folding away his gear. "A worthy successor to Willard, Dempsey and Tunney."

Change Came Suddenly.

The change came suddenly, as it always does. As recently as Wednesday night Herr Schmeling was most obliging, just as Mr. Tunney had been before he won the title in a loose alliance with Mr. Max "Boo Boo" Hoff, the celebrated sinister character of Philadelphia. Two months ago, in the same room at the Commodore, as the photographers apologized for imposing on his patience, he exclaimed: "Oh, sis iss quite all righdt. Ze more pictures you make ze more money I make." Similarly, Mr. Tunney once posed beside a brewery steed in Cleveland, wearing a polo uniform and leaning jauntily on an overdeveloped croquet mallet before he won the championship, and I do believe that in those days he would have posed wiping the dishes in a kootchdancer's gridle, so eager was he for publicity.

But on the morning after he had won the heavyweight championship of the world, with the sinister Mr. Hoff sitting not far back from the ringside, singing in the rain and cherishing to his bosom a contract signed "Eugene Tunney," a change came over him. That morning, as the late Tex Rickard paid him off in the Bellevue Stratford in Philadelphia, one of the photographers asked him to sit on the arm of Mr. Rickard's chair, "And both of you be looking at the check and smiling.

"No," Mr. Tunney said, with a startling access of dignity, "that would be undignified and absurd."

And don't I recall that Mr. Willard had gone moping around the country, grateful for any trifling mention of his name in the papers before he won the title in Havana, and don't I also recall that day a few months later when he knocked a photographer into a snowdrift in Central Park for trying to take his picture?

Deserves Little Credit.

Herr Schmeling takes the championship with less credit than any other prize fighter that ever held it, not even Mr. Tunney, whose numerous explanations of his dealings with the celebrated sinister character, Hoff, have explained the contract quite away. Tunney, at least, had beaten a number of tough prize fighters before the Dempsey fight, but Schmeling had been knocked out at least twice, had beaten only two good prize fighters and had just been knocked almost out by right uppercuts to the chin in the round just before he sank to the canvas in the Yankee Stadium, Thursday night, winning on a foul.

Today, Joey Jacobs, the man who really won the championship for Schmeling, was very busy and very important, with men waiting to see him, bearing certified checks for upper-case sums of money.

"I don't know what we're going to do about a lot of these propositions," Joey remarked with the wealthy air of a new champion's manager. "There's a whole basket of telegrams and letters in the other room there; all kinds of propositions. I am flooded with propositions, and very busy, but all propositions will be given due consideration."

Schmeling at least pledged loyalty to the little schemer of the prize fight racket who made him champion in that wild minute in the ring between the close of round four and the bell for the start of round five at the Yankee Stadium. Jimmy Crowley, the referee, completely bewil-

Golfers Await British Open Today

Bobby Jones Rules 2-1 Favorite in Field of 296 Players.

Diegel, Smith, Other Americans Feared by Britons.

By FRANK H. KING.

HOYLAKE, England, June 15 (A. P.).—Bobby Jones is ready to launch the second phase of his 1930 offensive against British golfing titles tomorrow when the big field of 296 pros and amateurs starts play over the Royal Liverpool and Wallasey courses, in the classic British open championship.

Jones, who led the American Walker Cup Team to victory at Sandwich a month ago, won the big medal competition at Sunningdale and then captured the British amateur title at St. Andrews, is only one of nearly 300 golfers from a half dozen countries who will tee off tomorrow, but the tournament seems to revolve around Jones and his chances.

Will Bobby Win? Big Question.

"Will Bobby win?" is the question everywhere and although the odds against Jones or anybody else coming through against the field ought to be no better than 10 to 1, the best wagers obtainable are at 2 to 1 against Bobby. The Atlantan has been practicing here all week and is in fine golfing form, but so are the other Americans competing, so fine in fact that Leo Diegel and Horton Smith gave Jones and George Von Elm a 3 and 1 beating during a serious four-ball match at Hoylake one day last week. On the same afternoon Cyril Tolley and Smith beat Jones and Von Elm, 5 and 4, with best ball of 62.

The Hoylake course, where the championship proper will be played, is in fine shape. "The greens are the best I've ever seen in any championship in my career," said Diegel today. The American professional champion had some reason for making such a sweeping statement, for he turned in a 69 in practice. Henry Cotton and Charles Whitcombe, English players, also have had approximate 69s and, along with Archie Compston and Abe Mitchell among the pros, and Cyril Tolley and Rex and Lister Hartley, are Britain's hopes against the American invasion.

Jones naturally is regarded as the leader of the American forces, but there is plenty of fancy shooting expected of Von Elm and Don Moe, other members of the American Walker Cup team, and Diegel, Horton Smith, Jim Barnes and MacDonald Smith, pros. Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour were entered in the championship, but decided to pass it up at the last minute.

Jones' Best in Practice Is a 70.

The best Jones has done in practice is 70, but that fact hasn't lowered his stock on the Liverpool market. Hoylake is supposed to be a comparatively easy test of championship golf when it is calm and quiet on the Cheshire links, but the wind is usually blowing, and when it is, George Duncan, noted British pro, says Hoylake is the most difficult course in the whole collection of British championship layouts.

The Hoylake course has been lengthened to 6,750 yards with a par of 72. The Wallasey, where half the qualifying rounds will be played, is 6,445 yards long with par of 70.

Hendricks Annexes Beaver Dam Cup With Net 66.

By HERY LITCHFIELD WEST.

IN the qualification round in the Columbia Club invitation tournament last week, there was a tie for the medal between Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, and W. Carlton Evans, Columbia, each with 35—36—71. In the play-off yesterday afternoon on the Columbia course, Evans was the winner, with a medal score of 39—37—76 as against Peacock's card of 45—36—81.

Out—
Evans	5	5	6	4	3—39
Peacock	4	7	4	4	5—45
In—
Evans	5	5	4	3	4—37—76
Peacock	4	4	4	5	4—36—81

A glance at the above score shows that Peacock took fifteen strokes on the second and fifth holes. If he had negotiated these holes in a par 4 and a par 5, nine strokes, he would have saved six strokes and won the medal with 75.

Bannockburn Blind Bogey Ends in Four-way Tie.

At the Bannockburn Club yesterday a large field participated in the blind bogey tournament. The lucky number was 69 and the competition resulted in a quadruple tie, as follows: E. O. Hansom, 87—18—69; T. P. Hayden, 91—22—69; J. T. McCarthy, 82—13—69, and H. A. Smith, 94—25—69.

The Scotch foursome, scheduled for yesterday on the Bannockburn course, was postponed to a later date.

At the Beaver Dam Club yesterday the program included an 18-hole, medal play, handicap competition for the club cup. The winner was F. Hendricks, with a card of 88—22—66. Three players tied for second place with net 71s, as follows: C. R. Miller, 89—18—71; L. F. Day, 81—10—71, and W. T. Henderson, 89—18—71. Day, with 81, won the low gross prize.

The feature of the two-man team competition at the Manor Club yesterday was the 19-hole match between G. F. Wesley and Fred W. Rade against M. H. Robb and G. F. Cramer. The latter pair were 4 down at the turn, but by staging a comeback, and with Robb squaring the match on the eighteenth hole, the match was carried to an extra hole, which Wesley and Rade won when they scored a par 5. The results yesterday were: H. K. Beck and W. W. Dean defeated J. C. Taylor and C. W. Comfort, 4 and 2. W. I. Green and E. McClelland defeated J. C. Nutnam and E. B. Baxter, 1 up. R. F. Garrity and D. L. Thompson defeated George F. Miller and F. T. Smith, 3 and 1. G. F. Wesley and Fred. W. Rade defeated M. H. Robb and G. F. Cramer, 1 up, 19 holes.

Henry Williams Cup Tourney In Fourth Round.

Moore; W. I. Geier vs. L. G. Quesada; D. L. Hazard vs. W. H. Alexander; J. W. Reese vs. J. T. McCarthy; J. A. McKeever vs. J. S. Williams; C. M. Charest vs. H. G. Wood; R. C. Dunbar vs. Pyne Johnson.

Having ended their match in the third round all even, Middleton Beaman and Leo F. Pass yesterday afternoon played another round of 18 holes to decide the tie, there being a difference of five strokes in their handicap, Beaman finishing winner 3 and 2.

No Sentiment in Baseball, And None in "Spot the Ball"

There's no sentiment in baseball, according to the accepted belief.

And likewise, there's no sentiment in "Spot the Ball"—the new game that The Washington Post will introduce to Capital fans next Friday morning.

But there's a lot of skill and a lot of luck in "Spot the Ball" and a lot of fun, too, for the fan who thinks he knows his baseball and must have it or the man, woman or child who can take his, her, or it's baseball, or leave it.

Starting next Friday morning, The Post will publish an action picture of the Washington-Chicago game in which the ball is being tossed about. But the ball will be retouched out of the picture and it will be your business to spot the ball—the name of the game.

Just make an X mark where you think the ball ought to be in the picture and clip the photo and send it to the "Spot the Ball" Editor of The Post before 6 p. m. the following day.

If you spot the ball correctly, or if your "spot" is nearest correct, you will be the recipient of four box seats to the next Washington home game—the daily prize offered by The Post during the remaining home games of the season.

Employes of The Post and their families are not eligible to play "Spot the Ball," but every other fan in Washington is.

The "Spot the Ball" Editor has called for play to start on Friday when the first ball-less picture will be printed in The Post. Try your skill, test your luck, do your best, or your worst, but mail your contributions to the "Spot the Ball" Editor before 6 p. m. the following day.

A'S TRIUMPH TO REGAIN LEAD

Grove Allows 4 Hits to Cleveland in 10-1 Victory.

DETROIT, June 15 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove held the Tigers to four hits today, and the Athletics evened the series with a 10-to-1 decision.

After holding Detroit hitless for six innings, Grove eased up, allowing the Tigers to score their only run in the seventh on McManus' double, followed by Alexander's three-bagger.

Jimmy Foxx hit a homer in the third with none on.

After two days in second place, the Mackmen regained their place by virtue of their win, while Cleveland slipped back in a trouncing at the hands of the Yankees.

Only two games separate the first and fourth place teams in the American League tonight. Philadelphia holds a one-game advantage over Cleveland, which leads Washington by one-half game and New York by a full game.

1,100 Golfers Seeking 112 Places in Open

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—More than 1,100 golfers, from New York to San Francisco, from St. Paul to Dallas, tomorrow will seek 112 vacant places remaining in the national open championship, to be played at the Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, July 10, 11 and 12.

Thirty-eight players automatically qualified for the 1930 championship, either through their showing in the last open or because they are representing the United States in foreign competition this spring.

With the field at Minneapolis restricted to 150, the other 112 places will be filled by 18 holes of qualifying play tomorrow in 20 districts, scattered from one end of the country to the other.

33,000 WATCH YANKS ROUT INDIANS

Gehrig Hits 2 Homers, Ruth 1, in 17-10 Victory.

CLEVELAND, June 15 (A.P.).—Cleveland lost its American League lead to Philadelphia today by dropping a second straight slugfest to the New York Yankees, 17 to 10, as the Athletics walloped Detroit.

The largest crowd ever to attend a ball game here, 33,828, looked on as Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and their mates leveled a seventeen-hit barrage at three Indian pitchers, Gehrig's sixteenth and seventeenth home runs of the season, plus a single, accounted for seven runs, while Ruth sent one run ahead as he made his twenty-first circuit clout. Averill added a homer for the Indians.

Overflow crowds were lined all about the outfield, making ground rules necessary, and contributing to the nine doubles hit during the game.

NewDealMay Bring Nats Infielder

Last Chance to Add Reserve Strength Comes Tonight.

St. Louis Scribes Are Agreed That Deal Was "Crime."

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

ST. LOUIS, June 15. — President Clark Griffith has until midnight tomorrow to complete a deal which will give Manager Walter Johnson practically all he has asked for in the form of talent. Then it will be up to the Nat leader to step out and bring his team in somewhere close to the top at the finish.

Johnson has been clamoring for a hard-hitting utility outfielder who swings right-handed, and he appears to have landed the type of man he wants in Dave Harris, Goose Goslin's failure to hit probably has cost the Nats ten games this season, and the deal which brings Heinie Manush to the Washington Club should eliminate much of the weakness in the third hole in the batting order, while General Alvin Crowder, who came with Manush from the Browns, undoubtedly adds strength to the mound staff.

With these trades in there still leaves the matter of infield reserve strength open, and it is understood that the Washington Club owner has this in mind and promises help, if possible. Johnson can get by with Jimmy McLeod and Jack Hayes if he has to, but it would be risky business and, besides holding on to McLeod, might prove to be the ruination of a really promising piece of baseball ivory.

McLeod Cost $15,000.

McLeod cost the Nationals $15,000. As a future prospect he is worth it, but he is only 19 years of age, has had little experience, and what he has shown with the Nats this spring has resulted from natural ability alone. With steady work in the minors he may increase his value to $50,000 within a year or two. Then the Nats would have in him a star who would be such for perhaps ten years.

On the other hand, keeping him with the team and on the bench may prevent him from ever developing. Griffith is a good business man and should see things this way.

It is a case of leaving well enough alone and possibly ruining a coming star and losing the money already invested, or of spending a little more money and landing a player, even one who is considered through as a major leaguer, who could fill in satisfactorily for a short stretch and fix things so that McLeod could be spared.

The Nationals are down to the player limit already, even with Gharrity still listed as a player, but several of the other clubs are not so well fixed and fans need not be surprised that if in tomorrrow's last day rush to get within the player limit of 25, Griffith does not put in a bid for some infielder and immediately send McLeod away for the seasoning he needs.

Johnson Tells Pitchers.

Manager Johnson had an unsual meeting in the Nat locker room before today's game, to which only his pitchers were invited. The Washington Club skipper is understood to have laid down the law good and plenty. He is particularly riled at the poor judgment some of his flingers have shown in pitching to certain batters.

"If they pitch to the known weaknesses of the batters they face and then are hit, I have nothing to say," said Walter, "but this business of thinking that they are so good they can put one right down their opponent's alley has got to stop. It's cost us several games, either this idea or plain dumbness, and it's got to stop."

The third game of the present set with the Browns will see Irving (Bump) Hadley and Walter Stewart doing the flinging tomorrow.

The St. Louis scribes had little good to say of yesterday's trade between Johnson and Killefer, all agreeing that it was a "crime." One scribe declared that it was the most ridiculous deal ever made in baseball, while Martin J. Haley wrote in the Globe-Democrat that it was the most one-sided trade swung in years.

HEINIE MANUSH.

Special to The Washington Post.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—Here's what Manush and Goslin did at bat today.

MANUSH.

First inning—Singled to right, sending Rice, who had walked, to third. Later in inning scored Washington's first run by knocking ball from Ferrell's hand when St. Louis catcher tried to block plate after return throw had beaten runner.

Third inning—Doubled to left with bases empty and two out.

Sixth inning—Led off with home run clout over the stands in the right center.

Eighth inning—Flied out to Goslin for second out with bases empty.

GOSLIN.

First inning—Walked with Blue on third and none out.

Fourth inning—Walked opening inning.

Sixth inning—Flied to Manush with none on and two out.

Eighth inning—With O'Rourke on first and one out hit into a forced play Hayes to Myer. Later died trying to steal.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 15.—Melillo opened the game by racing over behind Blue to take West's hard-hit grasser, which was labeled "hit" as it left the bat.

Coffman walked Rice on four successive balls in the first.

Manush meant business when he scored the Nats' run in the opener. The throw home had him beaten, but he came in at full tilt and collided with Manion with such force that the catcher dropped the ball.

Cronin came near pulling a "boner" in the home first, when he decided to "play" with Blue, who was on third when the Nat shortstopper took Kress' pop fly in short left. Instead of immediately returning the ball to the infield, Cronin held it, daring Blue to run. The latter made a break for the plate, but then hustled back to third. It

WHILE the undefeated Columbia Heights Nine was retaining its hold on the lead yesterday by defeating the Woodmen of the World, 6 to 4, the Aztecs furnished the major surprise of the Capital City League District unlimited race by defeating the Mohawks in easy fashion on the Congress Heights diamond, 11 to 2.

Frank Cinnotti's St. Joseph A. C. Team kept pace with the leaders, however, by trimming the Foxall A. C. tossers on Foxall field, 13 to 4, with Larry Schneider hurling effectively.

Burroughs A. A. got back in the race by defeating the Skinker Bros. Eagles in a wild fray on Burroughs Field, 13 to 12. The Anatcostia Eagles kept in the midst of the championship race by defeating the Army Medicos at Walter Reed, 8 to 4.

Maguire Allows Four Hits.

Maguire held the slugging Mohawks to four hits, while his mates touched Hays freely, led by Burch, Mulhall and Barry.

Although wild at the start, Red Rhodes checked the Woodmen while his mates hit timely off DiNenna. Home runs featured the St. Joseph's victory. Sammy Haas, Gartland, Gold, Tompkins and Hilleary hit for the circuit.

Trailing going into the final inning, the Burroughs sluggers rallied for three runs in their last stand and eked out the decision. Bladen went the route for the winners and was in trouble most of the way. Both teams played erratic afield. Gorman and Edmunds clouted circuit blows.

Ten innings weer required for the Anacostia Eagles to hammer out their victory over the Medicos. The winners counted four runs i nthe ninth after Lewis had held them in check from the fourth round. Goodwyn had but one bad round for the Eagles, yielding three runs in the seventh, when the Medicos tied the score and forced the contest to go an extra round. The rival hurlers also hit well.

DEFEATING Spengler Post's Nine, 8 to 6, on the Plaza yesterday, the George Washington Post representatives upset the dope in the American Legion midget baseball series. Two big innings, which netted four runs each, enabled the victors to turn back the previously unbeated Spenglers.

Victory and Sergt. asper nines turned in their second successive victories to tie for the lead. Victory routed Lincoln, 11 to 5, by virtue of one big inning, and Nash proved easy for Sergt. Jasper, 18 to 2.

Buechlier's Hitting Aids Victory.

Spengler was handicapped by the loss of its regular catcher and passed balls aided the George Washington Nine frequently. Hale went the route for the winners and had but two bad innings.

Buechler's home run and triple, with men on the bases, materially aided Victory's cause. Sergt. Jasper outclassed the Nash club throughout.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

HAVING recently returned to Chicago from a visit to New York, "Amos 'n' Andy" will soon be on their way to Hollywood, where they will begin work on their picture.

They are writing their own book and Bert Kalmer and Harry Ruby, who did "The Cuckoos" will collaborate with them on the music and lyrics.

It is reported that the original title of the picture "Check and Double Check" has been thrown into the discard on the supposition that this phrase has been worn out.

However, "Amos 'n' Andy" will not start for Hollywood until they are certain that the company is ready to begin shooting on the picture because of the enormous wire line charges which will be entailed carrying their broadcasts back to Chicago nightly.

It will be remembered when Paul Whiteman went to Hollywood, he couldn't find a story to suit him and waited around for a couple of months, with his company, paying the heavy wire line charges to carry his broadcast program.

"Amos 'n' Andy" will not repeat that stunt.

A new feature, Chicago Variety program, will be broadcast tomorrow evening (WMAL, 10:30).

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will appear in a version of "Macbeth" this morning (WMAL, 10:30).

REVEALING what many who went all the way to the trade show at Atlantic City failed to see, the first display will be made here at 7:15 o'clock next Friday night of the new and much-discussed General Electric radio sets. It will be the occasion of a banquet in the Press Club auditorium given by the National Electrical Supply Co., the guests of which will include dealers who desire to handle the new sets.

They will be addressed by McCloskey Garlych, field representative of the General Electric, who comes to Washington for the purpose of enrolling the dealers.

Bishop Freeman, of Washington, who is in England, will speak from London next Sunday (WMAL, 11:30 a. m.). It was inadvertently announced that he would speak yesterday.

Daily summaries of the British open golf tournament at Holyoke, England, will be broadcast by WRC at 5:45 o'clock, beginning today and continuing through Friday of this week. They will be transmitted to America by Station 2LO, London.

A POST reader regrets that Washington is not on the schedule of the "Pleasure Hour," one of the summer's most costly new features, heard over the WJZ net. Also that the Capital has lost the "Nit Wits."

"I think the 'Nit Wits' are about the funniest things on the air," she continued. "To have them taken away from us and not get 'The Pleasure Hour' is a source of disappointment.

"I thought local broadcasting stations welcomed suggestions from listeners as to what they wanted. However, when I called up two of them I was rudely received."

The Federal Radio Commission and American Medical Association did commendable team work in padlocking a Kansas station alleged to have given medical prescriptions and questionable advice over the air. This was the second station closed recently for objectionable practices.

Who said the commission had no powers of censorship?

When Prince Alfonso, cousin of the King of Spain, a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin, was about to be introduced over WMAL by the Spanish Ambassador, he protested that one can not "introduce" a member of the royal family to anybody—the reverse always being the rule.

The day was saved when it was suggested that the Ambassador simply "present" Prince Alfonso.

A new method of synchronizing the waves of stations carrying the same program is expected to make possible the operation of a chain of 50 stations on only five waves, according to the Dealers.

Yancey Reaches Arica After Overnight Stop

Lima, Peru, June 15 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, who left here yesterday for Arica and was unreported during the night, reached that city this morning.

Capt. Yancey, who is making an aerial good-will tour of South America, was forced to land at Camana late yesterday for gasoline, and, deciding it [illegible] late to continue, stayed overnight.

Jane Interprets the Mode

A black chiffon and circe lace gown for evening, cleverly incrusted and with the rather popular two-tiered skirt. (Courtesy of Joseph Paquin, Paris.)

Paris, June 15

SO the brooch has returned in something better than its ancient glory. Often it is hard to tell, to be aure, whether it is a brooch or a pendant that one sees fastening the front of Miladi's gown, because pendants are large and either round, square or elongated, almost always made of one or two large stones set with enumerable smaller gems.

But when the brooch is used in place of the flower boutonniere on the lapel of the coat, or when it decorates the cuff of an afternoon frock or the shoulders of a dinner gown, then one can no longer question whether it is a brooch or pendant. Often, too, the brooch supports a large pendant, as when an oval rose turmaline brooch supported a large square placque of engraved pale jade.

The old Celtic tartan pin design is now carried out in large size in diamonds and emeralds, and the brooch which is a tiny basket of flowers made of sapphires and emeralds, rubies and diamonds, is positively adorable with some types of frocks—and women.

• • • •

And bracleta! The new bracelets range from the simplest metal designs which are ever so smart and interesting to wear with tailleurs, to the most intricate development in the diamond setters art. And there are wide armlets of cut coral, and broad bracelets made of placques of the pink and green jade joined with gold links.

And then for strong contrast and a dash and flutter of light, a single line of gems not wider than a string holding a tiny watch set in a diminutive design of platinum and diamonds!

• • • •

And then you get a gorgeous new dress all hip-fitted and chic, and you put on your nicest new girdle that really isn't anything at all, my deah, fits like a glove—and then you find that your old underwear makes bunches and bumps right where it shouldn't.

There's really nothing left to do but to lose your temper—oh, wait a minute! Yes, there is, Dah-ray to the rescue because she had the same trouble! You can sit down and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to her, care of The Washington Post, and get back a leaflet telling you how to make the most wouderful bloomers out of a yard of material, or the best little lingerie shorts out of a half a yard, each with a biased "seatie" that precludes the possibility of the slightest wrinkle under your lovely dresses.

Black chiffon and cire lace, quiet and practical and chic. Cire lace, by the way, may be just like any other lace in design, but it is held together as it were, with shininess which does not rob it one whit of suppleness. And it's pronounced "see-ray," with a slight accent on the last syllable, not very pronounced.

Well, anyway, Joseph Paquin's black cire lace and chiffon dinner dress, particularly suited to the older woman, is sketched for you today.

• • • •

Every lovely lady is Cinderella these days, a modern Cinderella if you will, who wears silver slippers in her boudoir instead of black ball ones to the ball. Perugia makes those that I have sketched for you today, with turned up toes like little Dutch shoes of silver, satin lined. The top pair are of red wood! 'N then in some window or other I saw a little bird just about ready to fly off of the toe of another pair, so I caught him just before he flew.

The Goofus Herring

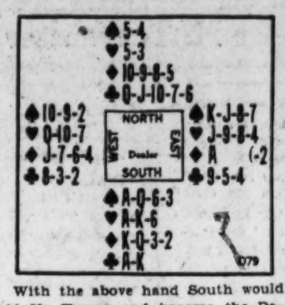
Of all the fishes the most daring
Is the silly Goofus Herring
Who on mornings bright just for a lark
Ogles every passing shark;
And having roughed her gills and fins
Winks at salmon in their tins.
In fact she flirts with all the males
Be they codfish, minnows, whales——
Then tells them all she only joked
Against the day when she'll be smoked!

WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



With the above hand South would bid No Trump and become the Declarer without competition; the size of the bid would be one at Auction and three at Contract, but in both games the Declarer would be trying to make nine tricks.

When the hand was played, West led the Four of Diamonds, Dummy played the Eight, East the Ace and South the Deuce. East then led a Heart, which South won with the Ace. South next won with his Ace and King of Clubs, but found it impossible to put dummy in the lead to cash the remaining Clubs; and as the adversaries did not lead that suit, the Declarer failed to go game.

Playing the hand the way South did, it is difficult to see how he could hope to go game. He did not provide himself with any way (except some fortunate break or adverse misplay) which would enable him to avoid losing from closed hand at least two Spades, one Heart and two Diamonds. But there was a way in which he could have been sure of his game without any help from the enemy or the fickle goddess.

The Correct Play.

If South had played one of his honors instead of a small card on East's Ace of Diamonds, he still would have taken two Diamond tricks and would have created a much needed entry in dummy. If this play had been made, South should have led his Ace and King of Clubs after winning with a high Heart, and then one of his small Diamonds, which West would have taken with the Jack and would have led another Heart. Then South, after winning the second Heart, would be in position to take in two Diamonds, winning the last in dummy, and after that to run dummy's three established Clubs. Thus Declarer would be sure of at least one Spade, two Hearts, two Diamonds and five Clubs.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF June 16 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date will create a spirit of good fellowship, and it will be a particularly good time for those things dependent upon the aid, good will and favor of others. Social functions will be carried off with ease and success.

The child born on this June 16th will have an innately practical nature, and its home instincts will be strongly marked. It will get along very well with its playmates and associates—a born mixer. It will be straight-forward, but will suffer through the deceit of others.

You are a generous spirited, broad-minded and good-humored person. There are few people who have had the displeasure of ever seeing you cross or annoyed. It is almost a tonic to meet you, for your optimism and enthusiasm is passed on to your companions—you also turn the lights upon others so that they shine forth in a new glory and an exalted self-opinion. It is needless to say that you wi, almost universal popularity, for who does not like to see a pleasing reflection?

You are big enough for real successes—you imagine yourself to be a giant when you are fighting, but you come down to earth when you have won. You exercise almost perfect self-discipline and can ride yourself with a tight rein. Your generosity often exceeds your supply and your warm sympathies move you to take upon yourself obligations for which you are neither physically nor financially equal. You are a confidential safe for a great many hard-luck stories, which the dynamite of curiosity and gossip never reveal—you can keep a confidence.

Perseverance, endurance, patience and caution are manifested in your character; also some psychic power and inventive ability. As a woman you show practical ability in the domestic sphere, and the power to retain conjugal affection. The parental nature, the attraction to family and relatives is very strong.

Successful People Born June 16.

A Poem Should be Written About This Dress

● For it's such a gorgeous thing! The first verse about the fashioning . . . how the ruffled collar, intricate seaming, romantic sash and sleeve treatment would make a princess out of any young thing.

● The second verse about the color . . . petal pink. How it makes one think of deep pink roses, the deep pink in a sunset. Truly, a romantic, poetic frock, $65.

WHAT TO SERVE WITH LAMB.
(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Custom has placed special emphasis on two accompaniments to roast lamb in addition to the meat gravy—peas and mint sauce. But there is no rule, social, culinary, dietary, or any other, requiring that these flavors be always used, or preventing the introduction of other relishes and vegetables. Variety in the menus and contrast in flavor, color and texture, are assured by changing occasionally to other combinations.

The point about selecting the rest of the menu centering about a roast of lamb is that vegetables which themselves are somewhat pronounced in flavor seem to be especially appropriate with this meat. The same is true of lamb chops, stuffed breast of lamb, and other lamb dishes. In a lamb stew, onion, green pepper and turnip, all having decided flavor of their own, give zest to the meat flavor. And when roast lamb is reheated there is the fine unusual relish obtained by making a curry sauce, which seems to be especially adapted to lamb.

For the roast, relishes like currant jelly, spiced conserves and pickles and horseradish sauce are all good, in addition to any vegetables served. English cooks sometimes have caper sauce or mint sauce, both of which are made with vinegar to give a pleasant mild acidity of flavor. American cooks seem to like their mint occasionally in the form of a green colored jelly made from apple pectin and flavored with mint, or as mint gelatin served as a salad or a garnish.

Peas, especially tender young fresh peas, remain at the head of the list of vegetables liked with lamb, doubtless because of persistent tradition.

Nevertheless, there is no logical reason why other vegetables may not be served in place of peas or to accompany them. Why not have for a change some buttered shredded string beans, or quick-cooked spinach, or onions, baked or boiled or creamed, or asparagus, or turnips, white or yellow, or cauliflower? Nor should the possibilities of good salad flavors to go with lamb be overlooked. Plain lettuce with a tart dressing is sufficient for a dinner salad; tomato, cucumber, and lettuce, in season, is always an appetizing salad with any meat and excellent with roast lamb; kumquat, endive and water-cress salad is unusual and colorful enough for a company meal; grapefruit and lettuce, too, is a good tart dinner salad.

MAN KILLED, CHILD SERIOUSLY HURT IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

One Dies, Three Injured as Auto Crashes Into Pole Near Oxon Hill.

GIRL, 3, STRUCK BY CAR, BELIEVED NEAR DEATH

Police Arrest Driver, Said to Have Fled From the Collision Scene.

Automobile accidents on the highways in the District and environs yesterday caused one death and injuries to many motor passengers and pedestrians.

John Pitts, colored, of 1750 Sixteenth street northwest, was fatally injured when an automobile in which he was riding at an early hour ran off the Livingston road, near Oxon Hill, Md., at a curve and crashed into a telephone pole. He died shortly afterward of a fractured skull and other injuries at Casualty Hospital, where he was taken in a passing auto.

Otis P. Pitts, a brother of the same address, who suffered severe cuts on his face and body, was arrested later as driver of the car for reckless driving following treatment at Providence Hospital. Maryland State Policeman W. T. Booker took him before Justice of Peace Thomas D. Griffith, who bound him over to the Upper Marlboro Police Court for trial Friday.

Child Near Death.

Other occupants of the car, all colored, were Broddie W. Edwards, of 1422 Eleventh street northwest, who sustained a broken arm and cuts; John Jones, of 352 K street southwest, cuts and bruises; and Dan Ward, of 225 K street northwest, who could not be located after the crash. It is thought he was picked up by another passing motorist. The other injured were taken to Providence Hospital.

Pauline O'Brien, 3 years old, of 1215 Morris road southeast, was near death at Casualty Hospital last night. She was struck by an auto operated by James H. Williams, 52 years old, colored, of 1737 Thirteenth street northwest, at Nicholas street and Chicago avenue southeast.

Hospital attendants reported that the girl had a possible skull fracture, a broken collar bone, and internal injuries. Scant hope was held for her recovery.

Williams was arrested and held at the Eleventh Precinct station pending the outcome of the child's injuries.

Boy Struck by Car.

Walter Easley, colored, 4 years old, of 116 Twelfth street northwest, was injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an auto near his home. The boy was treated at the Children's Hospital for laceration above the right eye. The car was driven by Frank Norris, colored, of 1432 S street northwest.

Struck with terrific force in collision with another automobile, an automobile was demolished yesterday afternoon in front of No. 29 Engine Company at Conduit and Reservoir roads northwest with slight injury to one man.

Lacerations of the head were suffered by Private Eugene Gobner, 26 years old, of Bolling Field, who was riding with Private John Kramer, 22 years old, also of Bolling Field. Gobner was treated at Georgetown Hospital and dismissed.

Auto Crowded From oRad.

Seventh Precinct police two hours later jailed George Krump, colored, 31 years old, of Corcoran street near Seventeenth street northwest, as the driver of the other machine on charges of hit and run and no District of Columbia permit. Krump, according to police, parked the car several blocks from the scene and fled on foot several miles to the home of his employer, James Crowley, prominent real estate operator, at Chevy Chase, who turned him over to police.

Lucille Stone, 32 years old, a clerk in the Veterans Bureau, of 1650 Harvard street northwest, suffered painful lacerations over the left eye early yesterday morning when the automobile in which she was riding with E. D. Latta, also of 1650 Harvard street, went into a ditch near Olney, Md., when it sideswiped another machine. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

One person received undetermined injuries yesterday, and three others were slightly hurt when the car in which they were riding, which was driven by Mrs. Beulah Parker, 23 years old, of the Ventosa Apartments, First and B streets northwest, was crowded off a Maryland road by another car which failed to stop.

Miss Margaret Wise, 11 years old, of the same address, Mrs. Parker's sister, is in Casualty Hospital with lacerations of the scalp and a possible fractured skull. Harry Parker, 28 years old, received bruises of the shoulders, and the son of the couple, Harry Wise, jr., suffered lacerations of the nose and face. The accident happened five miles south of Waldorf, Md.

When an automobile driven by Beulah Parker, 23 years old, of B street near Second street northwest, smashed into a telegraph pole near Hughesville, Md., yesterday two children were injured. They are Margaret Wise, 11 years old, of Oakland, Md., and Harry Parker, 2 years old, of the B street address.

Both were brought to the Casualty Hospital here and were permitted to go to their homes after being treated. The operator of the car escaped injury.

ALEXANDRIA TO GET LIST OF LATE TAXES

Properties Will Be Sold at Auction if Payments Are Not Made.

INFANTRY DRILL TONIGHT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The annual list of delinquent taxes on real estate is now being prepared by Purvis Taylor, city collector, and will be presented to the city council, probably at Thursday's meeting. The council will then set a date for the sale of the property at public auction and, after advertisement, such properties will be offered for sale at public auction if the owners in the meantime, have not paid the taxes.

The list is understood to be larger this year than in previous years, in spite of the fact that the taxes may now be paid in two equal installments, there being approximately 1,000 lots on which the taxes have not been paid. The penalty for nonpayment has been added to the unpaid taxes, and, in addition to this, interest will accrue on the tax and penalty at the rate of 1 per cent a month until paid. In the event of sale of the property, the city usually bids it in, and the owner may regain possession of it by paying accrued taxes, interest and expenses of advertisement and sale.

Each year there are many cases in which the owners permit the property to be advertised for sale, and then make payment of the amount due before the sale actually takes place. In some cases the owners are out of the city and can not be reached by mail at their last known address.

The Alexandria Light Infantry, officially known as Company I, 183d Infantry, Virginia National Guard, will hold special drills the coming month in preparation for the annual encampment at Virginia Beach August 3-17, inclusive, and hopes to have its full quota of 66.

Drill tonight at the armory will be interior guard duty from 7:30 to 8:30, and close order drill until 9 o'clock.

Monday, June 23, from 7:30 to 8:30, combat principles; 8:30 to 9, close order drill.

June 30, 7:30 to 9, marksmanship, sighting bar, sling adjustments and gallery practice.

The city forces will continue street improvements, having completed two squares on Queen street between Royal and St. Asaph streets, and opened this section to traffic, and will improve two blocks further ast, and also the 600 block Queen street when all property owners have signed for their part of the cost.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will hold an all-day meeting today, beginning at 11 o'clock, in the lecture room of the church. At 12:30 a box luncheon will be served in the Young People's Building, adjoining the church.

Mrs. C. B. Harlan, of Washington, will be the speaker at the afternoon session and Mrs. Gettys Myers will be soloist. Leaders of the different circles will give reports for the quarter just ended.

The Girls' Friendly Society of Christ Church will hold an indoor garden party on Tuesday evening, from 7:30 to 10 o'clock, in the parish hall of the church. Mrs. H. A. Latane, chairman, will be assisted by members of the society.

George Creger, of 527 South Alfred street, was struck by an automobile driven by William Latham, of 116 South Fairfax street, on Saturday night. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital by Reuben Canard and William Thorpe, where he was treated by Dr. M. D. Delaney.

His condition at first was thought to be serious, and X-ray pictures were taken to determine the extent of his injuries, but the man was able to go to his home yesterday. Latham gave his personal bond, when reporting the case at police headquarters, for his appearance in court if needed.

SLEMP WILL CONFER ON CONGRESS FIGHT

Acceptance of Nomination in Ninth Virginia District Remains Undecided.

HE MAY URGE ANOTHER

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., June 15.—C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia Republican national committeeman, will make known his decision as to whether he will accept the Ninth Virginia District G. O. P. nomination for Congress at a meeting of southwest Virginia leaders next Saturday at Big Stone Gap, it was said here today in informed circles. Mr. Slemp, it is said, has called the conference of county leaders to seek a solution of the somewhat muddled Republican situation in the Ninth District, resulting from the refusal of Representative J. A. Shaffer to accept the nomination and the subsequent naming of Mr. Slemp to make the race.

Those close to the situation here say that Mr. Slemp will not accept the nomination if the leaders believe another strong man is available. If the leaders think such a man can be found, the Ninth District convention will be reconvened to nominate him.

Mr. Slemp Not Anxious.

It has been known ever since his nomination that Mr. Slemp does not want to make the race, unless it is found that he is the only candidate available to make a satisfactory showing. Friends of Representative Shaffer have been talking of "drafting" him to make the run for reelection, but he has frankly told the leaders that his financial condition and his prospects of a lucrative law practice makes it impossible to reenter the race.

From a Republican standpoint, the situation in the Ninth District is described as the worst in the three Virginia districts where Republican representatives, elected in the Hoover landslide of 1928, come up for reelection in November. A check on poll-tax payments, it is revealed, shows that the Republicans have been lax in qualifying their voters, while from the Democratic standpoint, the prospects are brighter than ever.

One thing troubling the Ninth District Democrats, however, is said to be the frankness with which John W. Flannagan, Bristol attorney and congressional nominee, speaks. Some of his advisers feel that in view of the chaotic Republican situation, the Democrats have more to gain by soft speeches and statements, rather than "rubbing it in on the Republicans" to such an extent that natural animosities will be aroused. Some Democratic leaders feel that sharp words by their party's speakers will do more to keep the Republicans together than anything else, and are advising against a militant campaign.

Business Situation Bad.

The business situation in the Ninth is said to have hurt the Republican cause. Southwest Virginia has vast mineral wealth, but coal mines are running only a few days a week. The cattle industry, which also is of immense value to the Ninth District counties, is suffering greatly from the business and agricultural slump, as is the sheep raising and wool business. These conditions, following on the heels of the uncertainty as to the Republican nominee, have greatly strengthened the Democratic cause, leaders feel, and to take full advantage of the situation think that a quiet campaign is in order.

By such tactics, the Democrats hope to land the 3,000 independent voters in the Ninth District who refuse to align themselves with either party These independents usually hold the balance of power among the 30,000 qualified voters in the Ninth.

The word has been passed through political circles here that the Ninth District conference next Saturday will decide whether Slemp seeks the post he held for a number of years, or whether he convinces the leaders that he should step aside and allow some other formidable candidate to attempt to offset the Republican disadvantages as viewed within and without the party alike.

Fifth Incendiary Blaze Hits Seat Pleasant Store

The fifth fire within two months, supposedly of incendiary origin, in Seat Pleasant, Md., broke out yesterday morning, damaging the A. & P. store on Roosevelt avenue.

The fire was discovered by William Burkhart, of Seat Pleasant. He called the fire department, whose station is only about two doors from the scene of the fire. They smothered the flames before they had done more than $100 damage.

When discovered, the fire was burning against the outside of the brick building, at the rear. William Collins, of Seat Pleasant, is the owner of the damaged building.

The second floor of the building consists of two apartments, one of them occupied by the family of W. W. Dunnington. Mr. Dunnington, his wife and their two children left by a stairway on the side of the building opposite the fire. The other apartment is vacant.

Melvin C. Palmer, 19 years old, of Seat Pleasant, was arrested in connection with the other fires. While awaiting his hearing, which comes up next Saturday, he is out on bond.

VIRGINIA ELKS HOLD FLAG DAY CEREMONY

Exalted Ruler Urges Active Part in Government by Masses.

VISIT JEFFERSON HOME

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 15.—A higher regard for the American Constitution and a more active participation by all the people in elections and governmental affairs, was urged by Walter P. Andrews, of Atlanta, Ga., grand exalted ruler of the Elks, in an address this afternoon at joint Flag Day celebration of all lodges of Virginia, held at Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson.

The exalted ruler placed a wreath on Jefferson's tomb at 11 o'clock, and then visited the home of President James Monroe recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Johns, of Pittsburgh, and converted into a national shrine. Several hundred Elks from Virginia lodges participated in the exercises at Monticello.

Many men in public life today do not regard the Constitution with the high degree of sacredness that was accorded it by our forefathers, Mr. Andrews said, for it now seems that they stand less upon fundamentals and principles and more upon expediency and the practical application of commercialism and selfish politics.

"Many of us remember when public officials stood immovably, unqualifiedly and exclusively upon principle, but today political parties will put into their platforms various assortments of planks, wholly designed to win elections, and to secure for themselves and their henchmen the reins of power, and the distribution of governmental patronage, while Americanism is consequently forced to sit in sack cloth and ashes and weep," he declared.

In closing, Mr. Andrews mentioned the present day exploits of "Virginia's gallant young admiral, Richard Byrd, who has conquered the terrific obstacles of the two poles, and first flown the American flag over both the North and South Poles, and thereby has achieved history of ever increasing importance to the world."

VETERANS TO ELECT STATE CHIEF TODAY

Spirited Contest Looms at Cumberland Session on Naming of Head.

MEMORIAL RITES HELD

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 15.—The fact that the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars meets in Baltimore, August 31 to September 6, lends interest to the eleventh annual encampment of Maryland in session here. This is reflected in the fight for the position of State commander who will be elected tomorrow. The Baltimore Post thinks the position should go to the city because the State commander, who this year will be the titular host to the national encampment should be a resident of the city.

Commander Charles G. L. Heutzer is being opposed for reelection by Capt. Richard G. O'Connelle and William Miller, Baltimore, and James A. Haley, of Annapolis.

Mrs. Martha B. Hyde, Annapolis, senior vice president of the ladies auxiliary, is being boomed for the presidency to succeed Mrs. Mina E. Fischer, of Takoma Park, who, according to rules calling for rotation in office, is ineligible for reelection. Grace McCleary, of Perry Point, is an outstanding candidate for senior vice president; Margaret McClasky, Baltimore, for chaplain, and Catherine Cullison, Baltimore, patriotic instructor. It is thought the encampment will vote to meet in Baltimore next year.

One of the items of business to be considered tomorrow is a resolution calling on the next legislature to increase the State relief fund for veterans from $25,000 to $50,000.

Paul C. Wolman, Baltimore, senior national vice commander, who is attending the convention, flew to Pontiac, Mich., for the State convention June 5, 6 and 7. Following the meeting here, he will fly to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 19, and thence to State conventions at Utica, N. Y.; Danbury, Conn.; Springfield, Mass., and Hampton, Va.

A memorial service this morning at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, was attended by delegations of the Maryland Encampment and Ladies' Auxiliary. The Rev. Henry F. Kloman, rector, overseas chaplain and member of Henry Hart Post, this city, in his sermon commended the veterans in their objective toward world-wide peace.

This afternoon the visitors went on a sightseeing trip which ended at Wills Mountain Inn with luncheon.

Bloodhounds Lose Trail Of Four Who Broke Jail

Bloodhounds following the track of the four prisoners who escaped from the Fairfax County Jail at Fairfax late Saturday night lost the trail yesterday about 3 miles from Fairfax. The dogs dropped the scent shortly after the prisoners separated. Dry condition of the country was given as the reason for the failure of the hounds. The men had fled toward Clifton Station, Va.

Twenty-eight prisoners who might have followed the four through the hole in the rear of the jail stayed in the institution. The wall is three bricks thick, but old, and it was only the work of a few hours to scrape the mortar from the bricks with an iron railing wrenched from an old stairway. Visiting hours at the jail will be curtailed in the future, it was announced, and visitors will be closely scrutinized.

The four who escaped are Nicholas Breeden, 19 years old, of Washington, a musician indicted for assault on a Washington girl in Virginia; Taylor Edwards, 47 years old, of Clifton Station, Va., assault with a dangerous weapon; Edward Maddox, 30 years old, Accotink, Va., serving six months for being drunk and disorderly; William Parrigan, 23 years old, of Alexandria, Va., assault and robbery.
